Asks Secrecy on Details of Plane Sales Cardinals Are Called To Pick His Successor

U.S. SECRETARY SENDS APPEAL TO COMMITTEE

Morgenthau Says 'Incidental Remarks' Not Needed to Clarify 'Deal.'

SENATORS INSISTING

Military Group Would Hold Up Arms Secrecy But Seeks to Bare All Otherwise.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON—Secretary Morgenthau said today he had suggested that the senate military committee withhold parts of his testimony on the sale of American planes to France, but declared these portions would not conceal the treasury's part in the deal.

What he wanted, he said, was incidental remarks, suppression of which would not hide any part of the true story of the plane transaction.

Sentiment Gaining.

There appeared to be strong sentiment among committee members for making public the evidence of various officials, providing military secrets were omitted. The committee's inquiry has resulted in a senatorial controversy over general foreign policy, including the advisability of letting France and Great Britain buy latest model war planes from American manufacturers. At a meeting with the committee last week, President Roosevelt was reported to have taken responsibility for approving the French transaction.

Before the committee took up the question of disclosing the details of its inquiry, Republican house members gave their approval to most of the administration's defense program, virtually assuring its passage by the house next week.

G. O. P. Protests Guam.

The Republicans balked at extending defense lines in the Pacific as far west as the Island of Guam where the navy proposes to spend $5,000,000 for patrol plane landing facilities.

They protested, too, against the proposal to build the army air corps up to 5,500 planes in two years and suggested the increase be spread over three or four years to minimize obsolescence.

Legislation to authorize the army's share of the program, including the $300,000,000 air corps expansion, is scheduled to come before the house Monday. Leaders said it would be followed in about a week by the $65,000,000 naval air base program.

Sun Comes Out, So Do Shoppers For Bargain Days

Although Mansfield's semi-annual Community Bargain Days faced a gloomy weather picture early this morning, the rain cleared before noon and the sun came out to do right by the thrifty shoppers who make the most of these shopping events.

In fact there was a definite "spring trend" in the atmosphere, even when it was raining, which brought out shoppers, and sent them rummaging through stores for bargains.

About 50 Mansfield stores are taking part in the Community Bargain Days. All are marked by green pennants and signs.

The participating stores were well stocked with bona fide bargains when they opened this morning, and many of the articles which carry a special price through Saturday and Sunday night, will go back to the original price again Monday, according to V. H. Lodge, secretary of the Retail Merchants association, which is sponsoring the merchandising event.

Out-of-town license plates in the downtown district—and if these cars display News-Journal coupons they win parking immunity—indicated today that Mansfielders were not alone in hunting bargains.

FOUND IN CREEK

FLUSHING, O.—(AP)—The body of Steve Stefani, 69, his throat cut, was found today in a run near Lafferty. The coroner said Stefani was despondent.

More Cold Due, Flood Fears Rise

Heavy Rain In Southern Ohio Swells Streams; City Drenched.

Mansfielders escaped one cold wave this week, but another bore down on the city today, and it was expected to turn rain to snow tonight and bring near-zero temperatures by Saturday morning.

The city area was drenched by heavy rain last night and this morning, but the sun broke through the clouds before noon today and boosted the mercury to 44 degrees. A top reading of 52 degrees was recorded last night. Total rainfall to noon today measured .61 of an inch.

Sub-zero weather which is expected to reach the Ohio valley by tonight had spread over the entire west today, with temperatures ranging downward to 30 degrees below at Helena, Mont.

Blizzard Moves East.

The worst blizzards of the winter raged in the Rocky Mountain area from Canada south to Arizona, blocking roads and causing widespread suffering.

General rainfall throughout the Ohio river section renewed flood fears today, but W. C. Devereaux, U. S. meteorologist at Cincinnati, predicted the arrival of cold weather would avert danger of a new flood. He said the Ohio river's recession would continue slowly despite the rain. The river was at flood stage at Cincinnati, a drop of six feet since early this week.

Eleven persons lost their lives in the frigid wave in the Rocky Mountain area, and forecasters said a new blast of cold was heading for the western states from Alaska.

Chicago, hard hit by a blizzard several days ago, received heavy rainfall, but snow and much colder weather was due to hit the city today.

The mercury dropped to 8 below zero at Spokane, Wash., and it was 33 below in eastern Oregon. Snowplows worked overtime to open highways in California, Oregon and Washington.

FABER APPEALS

Fight Court Ruling Releasing Bonding Companies.

ASHLAND—F. D. Schell and L. A. Straits, attorneys for H. O. Faber, Ashland county treasurer, recently indicted with his son, Olen, on embezzlement charges, today filed a motion with the court of appeals for a rehearing on the cancellation of a $40,000 bond at the request of the American Surety and New York Casualty companies.

The action was filed after Judge H. E. Culbertson, who assumed the judgeship of the common pleas court Wednesday, overruled a motion for a rehearing.

Judge C. C. Chapman, Culbertson's predecessor, absolved the companies of the responsibility of continuing bond earlier this week.

The defendants' counsel also filed a motion to quash the indictment of the grand jury against Faber and his son, a former assistant in the office, on charges of forgery, embezzlement and destruction of public property. The attorneys contend that the indictment was vague.

A GOOD DEED

Lost Will Found In Papers Scattered by Burglar.

EVANSVILLE, Ind.—(AP)—When Mrs. Fred Guth died Dec. 21, 1937, her will was accidentally destroyed. Attorney H. L. Taylor thought he had kept a copy but couldn't find it, nor could he recall its contents.

A burglar solved the problem. He broke into Taylor's office, ransacked it and strewn papers all over the floor. Among the scattered documents was the missing copy of Mrs. Guth's will.

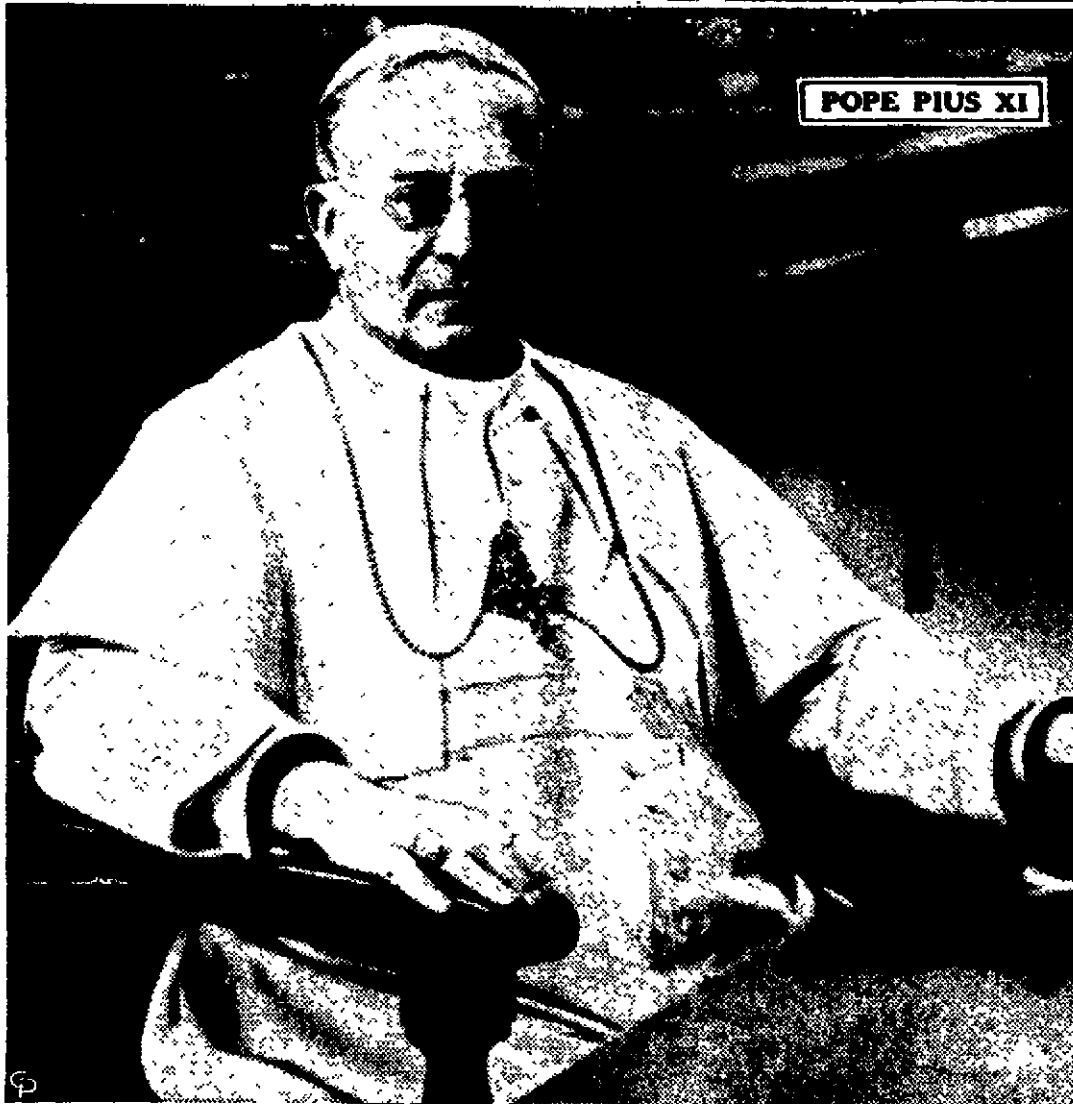

DONAHEY IRKED

Expresses Displeasure Over Court Appointment of Arant.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The nomination of Dean Herschel W. Arant of the Ohio State university law school to the 6th U. S. circuit court of appeals by President Roosevelt today was not calculated to ease the situation in congress over judicial appointments.

Sen. Vic Donahey, D., Ohio, expressed his displeasure at the appointment but did not indicate whether he would seek to obtain senate rejection of the nomination.

Pope Pius . . . Prayed For Peace At Death

A saddened world bowed in reverence to the memory of Pope Pius XI today as the centuries-old ritual of pontifical burial and succession began to unfold itself. Pope Pius died at 11:31 p. m. Mansfield time Thursday. A recent picture of the Pontiff is shown above.

Catholics Here Join In Mourning Passing of Pope

Bells at St. Peter's to Toll 9 Days; Mgr. Goebel Lauds Pius as Champion of 'Common Man.'

Catholics of Mansfield joined with members of their faith throughout the world today in mourning the death of Pope Pius XI and in offering prayers for the repose of his soul.

Masses, special prayers by members of the congregation, and the tolling of the church bell will mark the period of mourning at St. Peter's church.

The Rt. Rev. Mgr. R. C. Goebel, pastor of St. Peter's, who was elevated to the rank of domestic prelate last summer by Pope Pius, recalled the Holy Father as "strong, alert, firm, kindly" in a statement issued today.

Monsignor's Statement.

Monsignor Goebel had an audience with Pope Pius in 1925, two years after he came to Mansfield. His statement follows:

"In a period of greed, unrest and strife, Pius XI almost alone led the battle for justice for the common man, for the social and political liberties that make life bearable, and for the place that Christianity must retain if our civilization is to endure.

"His learning and grasp of world problems were manifest. I remember him as strong, alert, firm, kindly. He devoted his high office and unusual gifts to the welfare of all mankind.

"May his soul now rest in eternal peace."

HOLDOUTS GROW

Trosky, Pytlak, Hudlin Join Harder on Indian List.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Hal Trosky, Frankie Pytlak and Willis Hudlin today were on the "hold-out" roster of the Cleveland Indians along with Pitcher Mel Harder.

President Alva Bradley expressed no worry over a financial fight with the trio. Business Manager Frank Kohlbecker said 10 players had been signed.

he later revealed that 25 more prisoners are being returned to the penitentiary from the London prison farm.

Sherwood declined to reveal their names, but said they were parole violators. Previously, 23 transfers from the farm were effected in the case of prisoners who either had escaped and been recaptured or who had tried to escape.

"These transfers," said Sherwood, "clean up that part of the mess." He was referring to charges that certain inmates, through political "pull" or otherwise, obtained transfers to the honor farm when their records did not justify it.

Finds Charges of Liquor, Drug Traffic In Ohio Pen Verified

(By International News Service) COLUMBUS—Evidence gathered thus far in the sweeping investigation of conditions at the Ohio State penitentiary "tends to support" charges that liquor and narcotics were smuggled to prisoners and that certain inmates were shown favoritism.

This assertion was made today by W. F. Amrine, chief of the state division of corrections, who is conducting the prison probe at the request of Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood.

Amrine made the disclosure to news men at a press conference with Sherwood. At the same time,

NEW VILLAGE ASSURED AFTER GROUP'S VOTE

South Boulevards Property Owners Almost Unanimous for Incorporation.

LONE DISSIDENTING BALLOT

Law Requires 60-Day Wait, Approval of State to Set Up New Community.

A new village of South Boulevards, at the southern edge of the city, was virtually assured today when county commissioners approved a petition for incorporation of the residential section south of Mansfield following a hearing at the courthouse this morning.

Only one of approximately 25 property holders who attended the hearing opposed the incorporation, and commissioners were surprised at the almost complete approval the plan received.

Favored Annexation.

The lone opposing vote came from Willard Mitchell who said he preferred to have the South Boulevards section annexed to Mansfield, a proposal which the city turned down several weeks ago.

Before the prospective village can obtain a charter from the secretary of state, the application for incorporation must be on file with the county recorder for 60 days to permit the filing of any protests to the plan.

Officers of the South Boulevards Property Holders association, which sponsored the incorporation movement, anticipated no further opposition, however, and went ahead today with plans to ask for a $50,000 WPA grant for a sewage system in the community. The city already proposed a $20,000 bond issue to supplement the federal grant if it is obtained.

Plan Special Election.

Dr. C. W. Frickman, president of the Property Holders association, said the first move after incorporation papers are received from the state will be to seek a (Continued on Page 4, Col. 7.)

EDDYVILLE, Ky.—(AP)—Calmly and steadily, Sylvester Warner, 29-year-old convict, robbery slayer, walked early today to a death he expected more than four years ago.

Two charges of electricity ended Warner's life in the electric chair at Western Kentucky penitentiary just as he finished recited the Lord's prayer.

Warner, termed the "forgotten man" because of his long confinement in the prison death house, was convicted with two others of robbing and beating to death John White, 82, and his ex-son-in-law, Clay White, 54, on the night of Dec. 3, 1933. The robbery netted $11 in cash.

Police, Two Women Disappear; Authorities Begin Hunt.

CUMBERLAND, Ky.—(AP)—Chief of Police E. W. Blair said a posse began searching at dawn today for two Cumberland policemen and two women prisoners who disappeared yesterday en route to the Harlan county jail.

Chief Blair said Knoxville, Cincinnati and Louisville police had been asked to watch for an automobile in which the four were reported to have left Cumberland.

Chief Blair, expressing concern, said the patrolmen, Luther Price, 45, and Charles George, 30, had arrested the women and started to Harlan to place them in jail. The women, Blair said, were charged with disorderly conduct.

Called To Pick His Successor

Faintly-Whispered "Peace" Last Word Of Pius To Troubled World; Bells Of Catholic Churches In Rome Toll Out Mournful News.

BULLETIN VATICAN CITY—(UP)—The body of Pope Pius XI was transferred this afternoon with all the pomp of the Catholic church to the Sistine chapel of the Vatican.

By REYNOLDS PACKARD (UP Staff Correspondent)

VATICAN CITY—Pope Pius XI, 261st successor to the throne of St. Peter, died today with the faintly-breathed word "peace" his last message to a troubled world.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli assumed active leadership of the Roman Catholic church and convoked a world conclave of cardinals to elect a new Pope.

While the bells of St. Peter's and the 400 churches of the Holy City tolled mournfully, Catholics of Rome were on their knees in homes, churches and St. Peter's Square, praying for the soul of the deceased Pontiff. The world mourned his death.

The Pope's body lay in his chamber, four tall candles burning at the corners of his bed.

Pope Pius died at 5:31 a. m. (11:31 p. m. Thursday, Mansfield time) after successive attacks of cardiac asthma and other complications following upon the rapid development of influenza.

His last word, murmured as he entered his death agony, was "Peace."

A few minutes before, as he fought for breath, he had said: "We still have so many things to do."

Bells Toll News.

The bells of St. Peter's and other churches began to toll, and special editions of the newspapers informed the people that a beloved spiritual father had died. The bells were to have pealed in remembrance twice this week-end—tomorrow to celebrate the 10th anniversary of the Lateran treaty which restored the Popes to temporal power after nearly 60 years; Sunday to celebrate the 17th anniversary of the Pope's enthronement.

Arrangements were made at once to prepare the ceremonial Vatican throne room as a death chamber. The Pope's body will be taken to it this afternoon to lie in state.

The Vatican diplomatic corps and the government of Italy were notified formally of the Pope's death.

Additional pictures and stories on the life of Pope Pius XI will be found on Page 18 of today's News-Journal.

The Italian government at once offered to place the fast liner Rex, due in New York this morning, at the service of American cardinals so they could attend the world elective conclave expected to meet here in 15 days.

Three cardinals were named to assist Cardinal Pacelli, as acting head of the church until the election of a new pope:

Gennaro, Cardinal Granito Pignatelli Di Belmonte, dean of the order of bishops.

TRADITION: Age-Old Rites To Mark Burial of Pope Pius XI

(By Associated Press) VATICAN CITY—There is no person whose death could inaugurate such a chain of picturesque rites as that running its course for Achille Ratti—Pope Pius XI.

From the moment the Holy Father died today until his body is laid to rest in three coffins in St. Peter's basilica and his successor has given the world his blessing every action is embedded in centuries of tradition. The origins of some of these customs have crumbled into oblivion on the parchments on which they were written.

One of the most spectacular ceremonies will be the procession bearing the Pope's body to St. Peter's. From 50,000 to 70,000 persons can crowd into the church to watch a score or more of red-robed cardinals and costumed dignitaries carry out this task. Swiss guards in medieval armor will line the corridors through which the burden must be borne.

Emphasizing the grandeur of the display will be an ordinary confessor garbed in simple black with white surplice. His will be the role of the village priest in a humble layman's funeral.

This procession, however, will be only one of nine funeral services for Pope Pius. Each one has been worked out to its last detailed bit of symbolism.

Not less elaborate and traditional is the procedure of choosing the Pope's successor. Under the chairmanship of the papal secretary of state, the sacred college of cardinals will undertake this election within 18 days. During the election and in the interim the cardinals will follow a strict protocol.

In one meeting they will elect two prelates to deliver orations at the funeral and at the election of the new pontiff. But they will not hurry through to get to other business. Each of their sessions will have specific functions to perform. They will not crowd them in together.

Selection of barbers to shave them during their confinement in the electoral conclave, drawing of lots for cells in the conclave, appointment of a committee on (Continued on Page 17, Col. 8)

PEACE: Death Came As Pope Intoned Benediction For Peace

By MGR. ARBORIO MELLA DI SANT'ELIA (Copyright, 1939)

VATICAN CITY—With his right hand raised in benediction and pronouncing the words "Jesus and Mary," and "Peace to the world," His Holiness Pope Pius XI expired in beautiful serenity.

His saintly features, transformed by an expression of supreme sweetness, gave evidence that our Holy Father had entered the kingdom of heaven.

I stood beside His Holiness as Professors Milani and Rocchi called upon all the ingenuity of man and skill of medicine to prolong the existence of the Holy Father.

CHAPTER XXII

As they had hoped, the next day was warm and cloudless.

At 4 o'clock in the afternoon a hundred voices were hushed and a hundred pair of eyes turned toward the terrace where Alix, wearing a blue dress with a voluminous tucked skirt and a broad-brimmed hat with a blue velvet band, preceded Nancy in white lace and Bernice in yellow chiffon.

Alix's eyes, scanning the guests, saw only one face clearly—Gina's beneath a wide black straw hat. Then she looked toward the altar where the three tall men and a frocked clergyman stood against a background of palms and flowers. Looking at Tod, she thought, "How happy and splendid and handsome he looks!"

The solemnity of the ceremony and the resonant voice of the clergyman touched her deeply. And for a moment it was wonderful to imagine, with Kurt beside her, that the words were being said to them. But he had heard those same words with Gina some weeks ago.

When it was over and the brides had been kissed and the groom's hands shaken, the servants moved among the guests with refreshments and the hushed voices began again.

Alix was on her way to the house when Kurt's voice stopped her.

"You can't run away now," he said. "I want you to meet all these people who want to know you. You're lovely today, Alix."

"Thank you. Will you stay by me while I meet all those strange people?"

"Of course I'll stay by you."

They went from one group to another until her mouth was tired from smiling. A little later, when Kurt looked for her again, she was going toward the big house, carrying the broad hat in her hand.

Under showers of rice Nancy and Tod left in the roadster and Bernice and Don, leading a long procession of cars, went to the station. Gradually the guests thinned.

Standing on the lawn, Alix watched the last car drive away. But when she turned to go back, Gina was approaching her.

"It's the end of a very exciting day, isn't it?" Gina asked. "But it was really the most beautiful lawn wedding I've ever seen. You should be very happy living in this lovely place. And now—now you're alone."

Alix asked, "Won't you and Kurt stay to dinner? I'm going to feel very alone in that dining-room tonight."

"Thanks darling. But we can't."

Kurt came out of the house and joined them.

"Did you think we'd gone, Alix? Something's wrong with my car and Max is going to take us back to town as soon as he comes back from the station. Being best man at a wedding like this is serving double duty. Nancy may discover she has her mother's ring."

Gina set her black eyes on Alix. "How does it feel to be adopted?"

"I'm afraid I'll wake up," Alix said, "and find it's a dream and hear Mrs. Bishop's sharp voice telling me it's 7:30 and after a while telling me more sharply it's 8 and that if I want my job, I'd better get up."

Gina, slipping her arm through Kurt's said, "We really must go, darling."

Alix thought, "Her arm through his like that is a possessive gesture. They are married. Why don't they announce it?" Why do they want to hide it?"

Kurt said, "Good-bye, Alix. We are always saying good-byes. Alix thought, and yet somehow we always meet again. But the day will come when the world knows that Gina is your wife and her friends will be your friends and our good-bye will be final."

"Good-bye, Kurt."

The note of sadness in her voice chilled him.

She watched them descend the stone steps just as the car drove up. They were beginning their lives, too. The six people curiously woven in the pattern of her life were beginning their lives. But for her there was only the large silent house filled with the fragrance of flowers that would soon wither and die.

Through the car mirror Kurt saw her standing on the green lawn, the voluminous skirt of the exquisite blue dress billowing a little in the breeze, the descending red sun behind her, and the violet twilight all around her.

Gina said, "From stenography to society. And so suddenly! She's done brilliantly, hasn't she? And she'll probably make a brilliant marriage because of course she'll travel and meet scores of men. Your little friend."

"My little friend, he thought."

"All they have showered on her doesn't feaze her," he said thoughtfully, "Alix has fine ideas about what one should do with one's life. Gina. She thinks straight and honestly. She likes people for what's in their minds and hearts."

Suddenly he felt unhappy. Empty. It was a feeling one has after a bereavement, a feeling of aching loss. His little friend.

Gina asked, "Where shall we go for dinner?" She was sharing him with Alix, she thought, her anger growing. But she would not let him leave her. She would never let him go.

In the lobby of the apartment house Jerry Fayne aroise and came toward them.

"Hello," he said. "I happen to be here over night." He avoided Gina's eyes, darkening. I say, couldn't we all have dinner together?"

Kurt said, "Certainly. Come up. I want to get out of these fancy clothes into something sensible. I've just been best man at a double wedding."

In the living room of the apartment the young actor lighted a cigarette nervously and said, "Wait a minute, Kurt. before you go in to change. There are a few things I think you should know about."

Kurt stopped, looked at Gina with a frown, and then smiled at Jerry.

"My secret bride?" he asked. Gina went white. Her eyes were frightened.

"Oh, Jerry, what's the matter with you? Kurt has to change his clothes and we're going out to dinner. I'm famished. Hurry, darling. I'll talk to Jerry and see what he has on his mind."

But Kurt stood still. He wasn't smiling now. He was looking straight into her guilty eyes and then at Jerry, obviously nervous now that he had spoken out. What was this about to break, he wondered with annoyance. Was Jerry in love with Gina? He'd suspected it without jealousy. Many men had been in love with her and Jerry, quite young and quite new in his profession, was the type to be susceptible to her loveliness and the importance of her name in the theater. Poor kid, he thought. He'd come down to the party and had looked miserable all evening. Now he was here again about to make an ugly scene.

"Well, what's on your mind, Jerry? Get it off. I'll listen to you." He liked the boy. He wasn't jealous. "Secret bride? What do you mean?"

Jerry turned on Gina. "I thought so! You aren't married! You were lying to me! That's just another of your lies!"

Gina regained her shaken poise.

"But, Jerry, I told you that to keep you away from me. Yes, I did lie to you."

Kurt said, "You told him we were married?"

She nodded. "Yes. I had to. It simplified matters. It was the only thing I could do to."

Her eyes imploded. "Kurt, you do understand, don't you? He's been making a complete nuisance of himself since."

And all the while she was telling herself to keep cool, to regard Jerry's infatuation as something to be pitied, and that she could handle this situation and these two men if she could keep Jerry from talking too much!

She glanced at Jerry kindly. "Well, you've said it. You've embarrassed me and exposed my lie. I hope you're satisfied. Now do let Kurt change and we'll go out to dinner and forget the whole thing."

But Jerry's glance at her was hostile. "No," he said in cool anger. "I haven't finished. That's just one thing I had on my mind. Why do you think I made this trip? Your maid told me you were down here and I came down to tell Kurt what—that you don't want him to know!"

She appealed to Kurt. "Are you going to let him insult me like this? It's a fool. Send him away! Send him away!"

But Kurt stood quite still in the doorway that separated the living room from the bedroom. He didn't send Jerry away.

And later he knew it was because he did not trust Gina that he was curious to know what Jerry was determined to tell him! He did not trust her because she had lied. Why hadn't she said, "I told Jerry Fayne we were married secretly. I told him to keep him away from me." He'd have thought nothing of it had she said that. But she had said nothing.

Jerry said sullenly, "You'll say I'm jealous and that's why I'm doing this. But I'm not. I just hate to see the wool pulled over your eyes the way it was pulled over mine. A year ago she was going to marry you. Then she switched to Russell Emory because he had more money. But Emory switched from Gina to Barbara Melton, the showgirl. Then this year in Havana it was Gina and I before she came back—before she knew I had been lying to her about an inheritance I didn't have."

Jerry gave a short, bitter laugh. "I lied to her to make an impression and she fell for it. When I told her the truth finally, she dropped me like a hot coal and came back to New York. The next thing I heard you and she were together again."

Her voice tore out shrilly. "Don't believe him! Kurt, how can you stand there and let him say those things about me! They're not true!"

Jerry said, "There are several people who'll back up everything I'm saying. You played me for a sucker. I was crazy about you. I was crazy about you until a couple of days ago when I suddenly realized what a sap I was and that you aren't worth my feelings for you! You're the most selfish, grasping, scheming woman I've ever known. But you're a darned clever and convincing actress in real life when you want to be."

He turned to Kurt. "She's no more in love with you than she was with me. She doesn't know what it means to be in love. She's broke. That's why she fixed everything up with you. In Havana in one of her weak moments she told me how broke she was. If you hadn't come along, some other sucker would have."

Kurt said sharply, "That's enough."

But Jerry shook his head. "She didn't tell you, did she, that her screen tests were rotten? That's what she wants more than she wants you or your money or anything. . . . she wants to go to Hollywood. And she hasn't the money to go in style! She wants to use you as a means to an end."

Jerry's bright dark eyes narrowed at Gina. He sneered. "You were a good lesson to me, all right. I suppose I had it coming. But I'll be more careful the next time. The next time I'll look for quality. Thanks for the experience."

He reached for his hat and moved toward the door.

Pius, 'Pope of Peace,' Strove to Restore World Harmony

FOUGHT STERN FIGHT AGAINST PERSECUTIONS

Ruled Catholics of World for Nearly 17 Years, Always Worked for Peace.

By FRANK GERVASI
(INS Staff Correspondent)

VATICAN CITY — They called him the "Pope of Peace" but Pius XI, who died last night, fought with every fiber of his holy person for that peace among men and nations of the earth which would reflect their belief in an Almighty God and strengthen their allegiance to His standard.

Paganism, communism, race purity theories, persecution, lust for power, and war all met with his vigorous denunciation. Time and time again he raised his brave voice in defense of Hebrew as well as Christian, in scorn of those who would make man their god and dictatorial power their medium.

Waged Unending Fight.
In sickness and in health he fought the good fight for peace with every medium at his command.

One such act was an appeal to the clergy of the United States to "evolve a constructive program of social action fitted to local needs" that the spread of subversive teaching might be halted and the democratic ideals of the land be preserved.

Born Damian Achille Ratti on May 31, 1857, in the village of Desio near Milan, the future pope received his early education from the parish priest whose village church was just across the street from his birthplace.

His father, manager of a silk factory, was willing that he should enter religion and his young feet were turned toward the path that leads to Rome at an early age.

Deacon of Church at 22.
Entering Milan seminary, he began his studies in religion and at 22 was already a deacon of the church. Advanced study in Rome followed, and, ordained there into the priesthood, he returned to Milan seminary as an instructor.

Next to mountain climbing, the young priest's love was books. He sought and received appointment to the famous Ambrosian library that he might study and catalog and handle the famous literature of the ages and his cup of joy was complete when he was invited to St. Peter's itself and the great library of the Vatican.

Just after the armistice, he was taken from his beloved books to serve first as apostolic visitor, later as papal nuncio to Poland. In 1919 Cardinal Ferarri died and he was recalled from Poland to receive the red hat.

Succeeds Benedict.

Three years later, kindly old Benedict XI died. For three days behind the closed doors of the Sistine chapel, 53 cardinals took ballot after ballot in the election of a new pope. Their final choice was Achille Ratti and for his name as pope he chose Pius.

"Pius is a name of peace," he said. "I desire to consecrate my labors to the peace of the world. I choose the name of Pius XI."

For long years the popes of Rome had been "prisoners of the Vatican," citizens of a religious state which had no separate civil status. But in Italy at approximately the same time, a new leadership, a new government arose under Benito Mussolini and soon there were conferences, representations, tentative agreements.

Out of these new conditions came a concordat and Vatican City emerged as a tiny free state with full civil status, with a government and a postoffice free, after so many years, of the chains which bound it to the nation which surrounded it. For the first time since 1870, the "prisoner of the Vatican" could command attention as a civil as well as religious leader.

Other Troubles.
But the Lateran treaty was not to end the worries of the pope, to insure him a peaceful reign because other things came to plague him.

Bolshevism came to Russia and God went out. The Catholic government of Spain was unseated and civil war raged. Germany under a new leadership, a new theory of government, cried down the old beliefs and raised its new state church. Sluggish rivers ran red in China and everywhere communism raised its head.

And always came the voice from the Vatican, pleading, urging, praying "peace."

Loose times, loose talk, swagging actors on the world stage took their toll in the pontiff's health.

Near Death in 1936.
On December 24, 1936, it appeared that the end was inevitable. Yet the weak old man, lying on his bed of pain, spoke for half an hour to the world. In voice so weak as to be inaudible at times he pleaded again as he had so many times for peace—not the spineless, artificial peace of cowardice, but a fighting, living peace through war on "atheistic communism."

He was suffering in those days. The pains were severe. Life was an ordeal but the spiritual leader of 300,000,000 persons bowed his head humbly and said "I am happy to suffer when so many others are suffering."

"Pray!" he told pilgrims to the Vatican. "Pray and pray again! Truly it is only by the intervention of God that we may hope to see better days and days free of threat against everything we hold most sacred."

And in prayer he sought his own solace and comfort. Weary, aging, he turned his face to God and begged the indulgence of a happy death. "If it be thy will let this cup of sorrow pass from me but thy will be done."

Never Complained.

Never did he complain of his own suffering. Never as his tortured body convulsed with pain did he ask for himself. Always he prayed for peace for the millions of the world, baffled, confused and helpless in a storm of conflicting theories and circumstances.

Bit by bit he came back to a semblance of good health but the road ahead was still dark.

In October, he said:

"And now having reached the old age of 80 we ask ourselves, truly moved and overcome with consternation, what more are we to see? What more has Divine Providence reserved for our eyes? We constantly tell God we would be most grateful if he were to concede us a good death. It would certainly be a rest for an old and now tired worker. But we cannot but add like good, old St. Martin, 'If we still can do something for the common good, Thy will be done, O Lord.'"

Sent Eucharistic Message.

To the eighth Eucharistic congress at New Orleans he sent his benediction by radio and a message in which he said:

"Scarcely can we refrain from tears when we behold the eternal majesty of God Himself set aside and outraged or, with unspokeable wickedness, held up as an enemy to reviling and execration."

When all the world was breathless as the threat of a world-wide war arose out of the Sudetenland situation, the holy father again on the radio exhorted the world to pray that the catastrophe might be averted.

"To the unarmed but invincible power of prayer let the people have recourse once again," he prayed, "that God in whose hands rest the destinies of the world may sustain in those who govern, confidence, the pacific ways of negotiation and of lasting agreements."

Protested Jewish Persecution.

He protested, too, the persecution of the Jews and the new regulations of the Italian state on the claimed right to ban marriage between Aryans and non-Aryans.

For 16 years the "Pope of Peace" had scarcely had a single moment of peace. For 16 years he had risen before daylight, worked at his desk long after the city was asleep.

A tumultuous, wearying, soul-searing reign had been his. Yet worn by pain and suffering—mental as well as physical—he would have gone on if it had been willed that he should.

Not in long years had he had time for his beloved books, neither the time nor the strength to climb as he loved to climb in his youth into the fresh, sweet air of the mountain tops.

Precipitated into the position of defender not only of Catholicism and his own church but of all Christianity, all faith in a Supreme Being, he had accepted the responsibility and the challenge.

His voice had been raised with all the vigor at his command against every threat to the foundations of religion. His text was "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's" and neither poor health nor rebuffs deterred him in his ceaseless battle to preserve that division.

Voice Heard World Over.

When Pius spoke, the world listened. His voice carried into every corner of the globe. When he lashed out at fifth in the movies, Hollywood hastened to mend its ways with voluntary censorship. When he attacked Communism, leaders of the party in the United States offered the hand of friendship only to be as sternly rebuffed and denounced again.

A simple, gentle, kindly man, he showed throughout his life the effect of home training when there is love and understanding for a bond between child and parent.

Among the relics he leaves is a paper he wrote as a schoolboy and which he dedicated to his mother.

"Mother mine, mother rare, mother whose virtues are of the ancient kind," the faded schoolboy scrawl reads, "I dedicate to thee these plans of our great city for they are the most ancient that are known. I dedicate them to thee on thy birthday, and delight in the thought that in long distant years, some student will read thy name and will find in this a proof of the affection and veneration which thy sons have for thee."

And some student will read her name and will remember that she was the mother of the boy who became the 260th successor of Peter in the ancient kingdom of the Holy Roman Catholic church.

Some student will read her name and will breathe a prayer for this humble, obscure woman who mothered a man of God.

She gave the world Pope Pius XI, and he gave the world his very self.

No man can do more.

MUNDELEIN TO HURRY TO ROME

Ailing Cardinal, One of Three in U. S., Leaves Sick Bed to Board Liner Tomorrow.

(By United Press)

HOBE SOUND, Fla. — George Cardinal Mundelein, archbishop of Chicago, learned with sorrow today of the death of Pope Pius XI and immediately arranged to hasten to Rome where he will participate in selecting a new head of the church.

Cardinal Mundelein will leave here at 12:55 p. m. today on the Florida East Coast train, "Miami-an," which is scheduled to reach New York tomorrow at 1:35 p. m. At New York he expects to board the Italian liner Rex for Naples, Monsignor Casey, the cardinal's secretary said.

Word of the Pope's death was withheld from Cardinal Mundelein, one of the three American cardinals, until after he arose this morning.

The cardinal was deeply affected by the news, Monsignor Casey reported.

William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston, and ranking priest in the sacred college, has been in failing health and was in seclusion at "The Hermitage," Nassau, Bahamas, when the Pope died. It was doubted that he would attempt to make the trip.

Dennis Cardinal Dougherty, archbishop of Philadelphia, probably will attempt to reach the Vatican City before the college of cardinals convenes.

PLAN MEETING

LUCAS — Plans for a "guest night" meeting of the Lucas Garden club, which will be held next Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Culler, near Lucas, include the entertainment of the husbands of members of the club as guests of the evening.

An illustrated lecture on "Flowers for Continuous Blooming" will feature the club's program.

A comic valentine will be the price of admission for each member and guest at the affair.

PEACE PRAYER LAST FOR POPE

Vatican Attache Says Pontiff Died After Intoning Plea for 'Peace to World.'

scious of the imminence of his death and at one point he signalled with his hand that he knew there was nothing more to be done.

He was ready to meet his maker. Mgr. Deromans, who, like the rest of us, could not keep back his tears, approached the Pope intoning the invocation: "Jesus, Joseph, and Mary, may my soul expire with me in peace."

The countenance of the Pontiff became illuminated as he heard these words.

With the last frail remnant of his strength, in a clearly audible intonation to God, the Pontiff said: "Jesus and Mary . . . peace to the world." As he lifted his fingers in benediction the Pope's head leaned to the right.

His fingers were still outstretched in the last action of benediction to this world filled with trials and tribulations when suddenly the hand of the Holy Father dropped quickly to his breast.

His Holiness had passed away. It seemed unreal to us all. It seemed impossible.

It seems impossible even now.

Pontiff to Be Buried Near St. Peter's Tomb.

Pope Pius XI will be buried barely 100 feet from the tomb of St. Peter, though 2,000 years separate the first and most recent of pontiffs.

Burial will be in an already prepared niche directly opposite the monument to Benedict XV who directly preceded Pius.

The remains will be placed first in a bronze coffin, then in one of lead and these two in turn will be placed into a wooden coffin.

The vital organs will be taken to the Church of St. Vincent and Anasthasius at the Fountain of Trevi, in the heart of Rome, known to tourists the world over as the place where one drops copper coins before leaving Rome to ensure returning to the eternal city.

Break Fisherman's Ring.

One of the curious tasks confronting the cardinals is the breaking of the fisherman's ring taken from Pope Pius' finger. This ring is a gold band with an engraving of St. Peter fishing from a boat. Records show it was used as a seal as far back as the 13th century. It will be given to the new pope in token of the end of the "widowhood" of the church.

The voting for the new pope will follow ancient rules. It will begin after the youngest cardinal deacon has dropped a double handful of wooden balls into a violet silk bag to select the scrutinizing committee. It will go on at a leisurely pace, two ballots being taken daily, no more, until someone receives a two-thirds majority.

After each vote the ballots will be burned. Until there is an agreement, the official in charge of burning them will mix a bit of damp straw with them to darken the smoke so the crowds outside the palace watching the chimney may know whether there is a new Pope. When the final fire, without the damp straw, sends up white smoke, that will be the signal of the election.

Coronation Impressive.

Concluding the long succession of traditional events will be the impressive ceremonies for the coronation of the new pontiff.

Before the general public sees the new Pope, he will receive the homage of his cardinals in a dramatic ceremony in which each will kneel before him to kiss his slipper. After that, certain bishops will be allowed to kiss his foot and knee.

Finally will come the coronation itself, with a wildly shouting, cheering crowd in St. Peter's straining for a glimpse of the new holy father and the gleaming, jewel-studded golden tiara carried on a cushion for him. The sound of silver trumpets announcing his entrance into the basilica proper and a choir chanting the papal hymn, "Tu Us Petru," (Thou Art Peter) will be drowned in a roar of "vivas" for "Il Papa! Il Papa!"

RETAIL TRADE SURVEY CHEERS STOCK DEALERS

Spending Up 2 to 7 Per Cent
in Comparison With 1938;
Market Drifts Lower.

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK — Stock market leaders again backed away today as most traders inclined further to lighten commitments.
In the lower drift were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Electric, American Telephone and U. S. Gypsum.
Changes in the news picture, marketwise, were scant. Bonds, commodities and foreign markets were uneven.
Market followers found comfort in the trade survey of Dun & Bradstreet which estimated retail spending this week, buoyed partly by better weather conditions throughout the country, rose 2 to 7 per cent above the volume in the like 1938 week.
Noted was the statement of the federal reserve system for the week ended Wednesday disclosing excess reserves for all members dropped $20,000,000 in the week.

STORY OF 'GAY DELANEYS' TOPS LIBRARY FICTION

Walpole Writes of Family That Plays and Laughs in Face of Poverty.

The Mansfield Public library includes Hugh Walpole's new book, "The Gay Delaneys" in its new fiction this week-end. This is the story of a gay irrepressible family faced with the aggressive march of poverty, whose members continue to play when they should be working, to laugh when they might have cried, and to help others when they might have done more for themselves.

Fred Delaney and his wife, Meg, take roomers in the huge house that had belonged to his family for 150 years, hoping in this way to keep its ownership.

"Of Great Riches" by Rose Franken is a tender yet satiric characterization of two middle-class young people in New York, whose marriage weathers many storms. Theodor, who took up writing after the death of her baby, nearly loses her head and her husband as well because she cannot take success and riches sanely.

"Dr. Norton's Wife" by Mildred Walker is a novel of love and medicine against the background of a modern medical school. The theme is the integrity and devotion of a man and his wife.

Other fiction: "Mystery at Hidden Harbor" by Fitzsimmons; "This Is Mr. Fortune, Bailey;" "Glass Slipper" Eberhart; "Journey to the West" Teillet; "Frost Flower," Hull; and "Royal Regiment," Frankau.

Analyzes Chamberlain. "The Chamberlain Tradition" is Sir Charles Petrie's story of the remarkable Chamberlain family through 50 years of British diplomacy up to the present time. This book offers opportunity for a true understanding of the character of Neville Chamberlain, who is undeniably the human question mark of the hour.

"My Husband Gabriolowitch" by Clara Clemens is a biography warm with the personality of a great artist. Mark Twain's daughter tells with humor and shrewd observation of the life she and her husband enjoyed together, and of their close friends among celebrities of the musical world.

"Breathe Freely" by James Kendall was written by a chemist to convince the average citizen in Great Britain that there is no need for panic when poison gas is employed as a weapon against civilians in warfare.

Other non-fiction includes: "Theory of Statistically Indeterminate Structures" by Fife and Wilbur; "Aircraft Flight Instructor," Duncan; "Standard Book of British and American Verse," Braddy, comp.; "Handbook of 20th Century Opera," Teasdale; "One-Act Play Today," Kozlenko; "Advanced Problems of the Fiction Writer," Gallishaw; "Logical Nonsense: The Works of Lewis Carroll," "Historia Regum Britanniae," Mayer and Prideaux.

WORLD MOURNS DEATH OF PIUS, 'POPE OF PEACE'

College of Cardinals Called to Pick Successor as Bells Toll Mournful News.

Cardinal Caccia Dominioni, dean of the order of deacons, Cardinal O'Connell, now at Nassau, Bahamas islands, became senior cardinal presbyter Dec. 24 on the death of Cardinal De Sibirsky of Germany.

Speculation on Successor.

Speculation started regarding the man who would be named to succeed Pope Pius XI as the 262nd head of the church. As was usual, numerous names were mentioned of cardinals whom the sacred college, at solemn secret conclave, might choose to assume the spiritual leadership of more than 300,000,000 people.

There had been speculation, during the years of the pope's failing health, whether a non-Italian cardinal, possibly an American, might be named to leadership. The general feeling was that, as has been customary, an Italian would be named.

Pope Pius, born May 31, 1857 and looking forward to celebrating his 82nd birthday this spring, suffered an attack of cardiac asthma in his library Monday afternoon while reading telegrams from all over the world congratulating him on the anniversary of the historic Lateran treaty and of his own enthronement.

It was developed. It was made known next morning that his condition was causing some anxiety. None knew, though, that this time the pope's amazing vitality would fail him. Not only he, but his physicians, believed that he would be able to attend the celebrations this week-end.

Condition Becomes Grave.

Yesterday it became apparent that his condition was urgently grave.

Dr. Giovanni Rocchi called in Dr. Bianchi Cesa. Three days of prayer were ordered for the pope's recovery. It was announced late in the afternoon that there was a general weakening of his condition. The influenza had become worse and fever was noted.

Then came a severe attack of cardiac asthma which lasted 40 minutes. The pope fainted several times. Two physicians remained at his bedside and two male nurses were called. To the astonishment of everyone, the pope began to rally, as he had done so often before.

Prof. Achille Bonanome, a kidney specialist, was called at 9 p. m. The pope was resting easily. The two regular physicians made arrangements to spend the night at his bedside, confident that he had fought off another threat to his life.

During the evening, churches in Rome and all parts of the world were well filled with people praying for the pope's recovery. There was an atmosphere of tension inside the Vatican and many of the attendants were reluctant to go to bed. More than 200 Italian bishops, summoned for the week-end celebrations, and more than 40 cardinals, were among those who worried and prayed.

Takes Sudden Turn.

The pope's condition became suddenly desperate at about 4 a. m. He had been resting satisfactorily, with Dr. Rocchi beside him. The pope began to mutter unintelligibly. Dr. Rocchi started from his chair. He saw that the end was near. He at once injected camphor in an effort to strengthen the fluttering heart. Then he called the pope's private secretaries.

A few minutes later a United Press correspondent standing in the windswept courtyard of the Vatican saw a member of the papal household emerge from the pope's private apartments and run toward the governors' building, where Prof. Amintore Milani, for years the pope's private physician, was ill with influenza.

Prof. Milani dressed hastily. Then he and Count Franco Ratti, the pope's favorite nephew, who had been summoned, crossed the yard to the private apartments.

High church officials began arriving, including Cardinal Pacelli, the secretary of state, archpriest of the Vatican Basilica and camerlengo of the church.

The pope entered his death agony at 5 a. m.

A few minutes before the pope had been able to enunciate his last protest against death, that he had so much work to do.

Monsignor Alfonso Camillo De Romanis, Sacrist of Vatican City, arrived at 5:10 a. m. and administered extreme unction.

Prays In Death Agony.

Cardinal Lauri, the pope's private confessor, had been called. The minutes passed and it was evident the end was near. With the amazing fortitude which was the inheritance of years as a mountain climber in his youth, the pope rallied again, and murmured "Peace," Monsignor De Romanis confessed him.

The Pope kept murmuring in Latin, praying in his last agony. Cardinals, physicians, nurses, prelates and members of the household, along with the pope's nephew, were now in the bedroom, all watching the venerable man to whom no mortal now could give aid.

As they watched, his right hand, lying just on the edge of the coverlet, moved freely. Those in the bedroom gazed fascinated as his hand rose, trembling, an inch, then two inches from the covers and made, slowly and weakly, the sign of the cross, imparting the last Apostolic benediction of his nearly 17-year reign as the 261st head of the Roman Catholic church.

Thirty seconds later his head inclined gently toward the right side of his pillow. His face relaxed and he died.

One by one, those in the bedroom dropped to their knees and made the sign of the cross. Prof. Milani, the physician who had attended him so long and was kept from the bedside until the last moment by his own illness, burst into tears.

Crucifix in Hands.

The Pope's hands were crossed on his breast, folded over a crucifix. From the one painting in the room, St. Theresa of the Child Jesus looked down upon the Pope's face. The Pope had specially venerated St. Theresa, and prayed for her health. A white veil was laid over his head and returned in his vestments of deep violet red, the color of mourning. He approached the bed and tenderly removed the veil. An attendant handed him a silver mallet. He leaned over and tapped the Pope's forehead with the mallet.

"Achille!" he called softly—the Pope's baptismal name.

Twice he repeated it, each time tapping the Pope's forehead, then he stepped back and said:

"Verily, the Pope is dead."

Thus passed Achille Ratti, born at Desio, Italy, May 31, 1857, made archbishop of Milan and cardinal June 16, 1921, elected Pope Feb. 6, 1922, as successor to Benedict XV; crowned Feb. 12, 1922, who became His Holiness the Pope, Bishop of Rome and Vicar of Jesus Christ, successor of St. Peter, Prince of the Apostles, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal Church, Patriarch of the West, Primate of Italy, Archbishop and Metropolitan of the Roman Province, Sovereign of Vatican City.

Reigned In Troubled Times.

It was not surprising that the Pope was mourned by many people. He had succeeded Benedict XV in 1922 at a time when the new, troubled Europe of the Fascist-Nazi era was just beginning to emerge.

He had seen countries torn by war—particularly Catholic Spain, where in his closing years, Catholicism had fought Catholicism in the most tragic civil war of the times, where churches had been desecrated and burned and people whom he regarded as his children had died by hundreds of thousands or had been driven homeless to wander over the country.

He was a strong man in his youth, and he refused to admit even in his last years that he had to give way to age. While his mountain climbing of his early years, when he was a famous Alpinist, helped him to fight illness, his own indomitable determination to do his work had at the same time weakened him, and again and again threatened his life.

Even so late as yesterday, it had been necessary for his physician to persuade him to keep to his bed. His cardiac asthma which affected his heart and circulation was at the seat of his illness.

The first of the final series of illnesses occurred at the end of 1936 and continued on into 1937. The Pope suffered agonies from swollen veins in his legs. It was torture to his attendant to watch him. But he fought stoutly.

Even while the necessary preparations were being made in event that he died, insisted that he would live to celebrate his birthday and argued with his physicians that he could not stay in bed because he had much work to do.

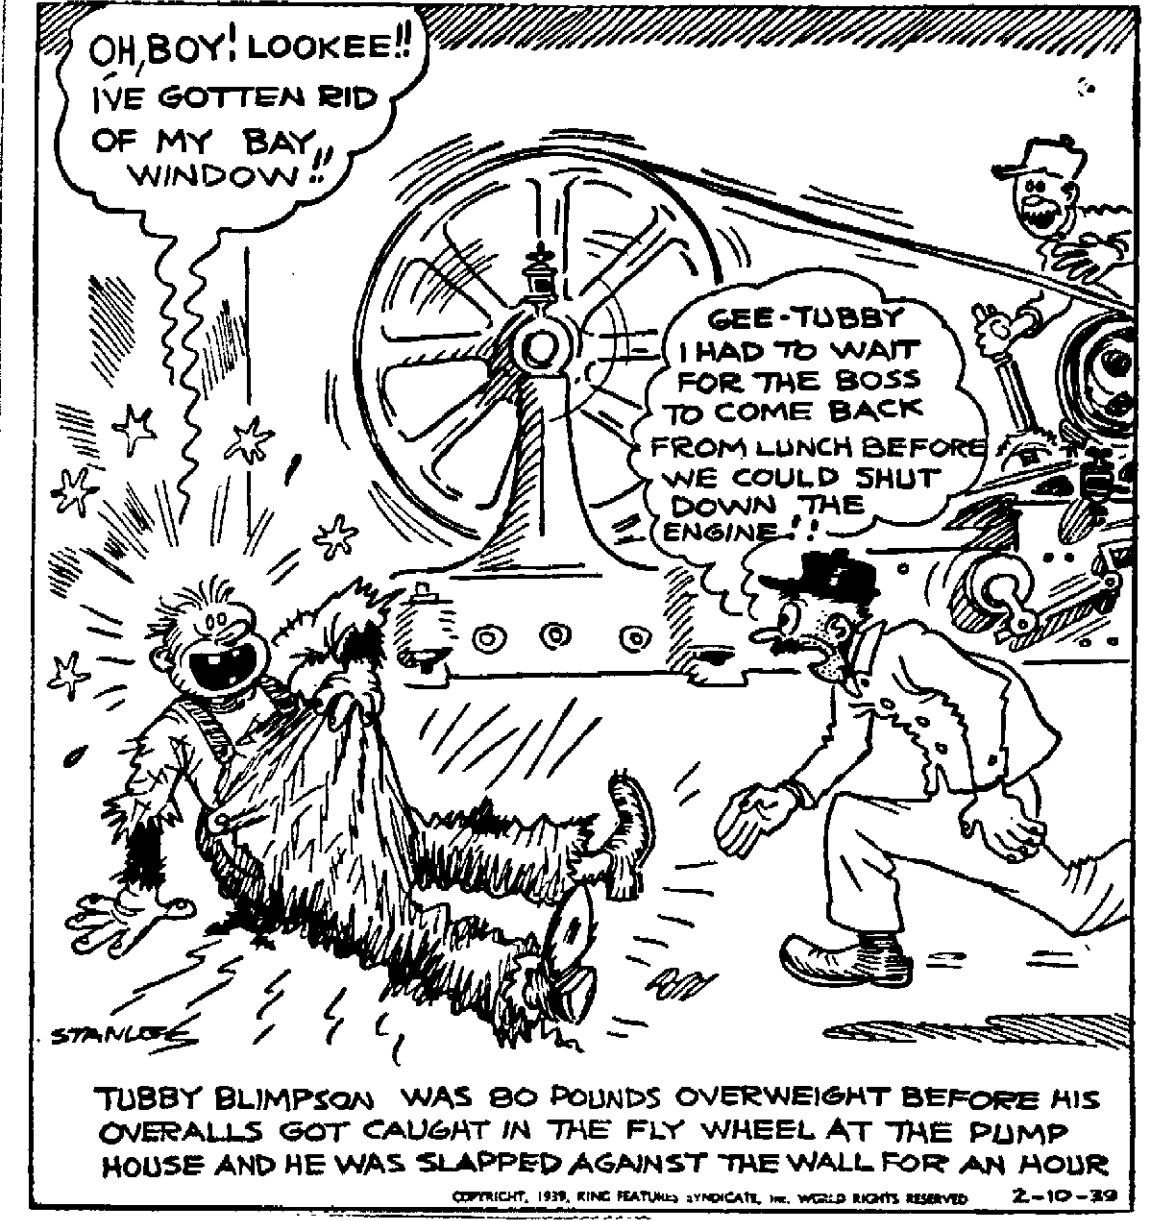

'Pope Must Be Pope.'

A weakly enunciated "The Pope must be Pope and must not stay in bed" became a familiar phrase to those about the Vatican.

The Pope was stricken again last August; again in November, when the last sacrament was administered. He recovered to make vigorous speeches against world conditions, including protests against Italy's anti-Jewish laws and the situation of the church in Nazi Germany.

The sort of man Pope Pius was is shown by some of the things he did. He was the first Pope to broadcast his blessing by radio, to speak for talking pictures, to ride in the Vatican gardens in a motor car—American make, incidentally.

He granted the first papal interview to a newspaper correspondent, to Thomas B. Morgan, then chief of the United Press bureau at Rome. He permitted the Swiss Guard, protectors of the Pope, to form a football club. He approved mass in St. Peter's to the first modern music ever heard there.

Modernized Vatican.

He modernized the Vatican, installed telephones and a broadcasting system. He gave the blessing "Urbi et Orbi" from a balcony of St. Peter's the day he was elected but before he was crowned. He restored the popes to sovereignty with the Lateran treaty and was the first pope to leave the Vatican since 1870. First of the popes for a hundred years to do so, he left the Vatican during the summer and established himself at Castel Gandolfo. And all the time, as he became older and more feeble, he drove himself harder and harder, up to the day of his death when he was completing a speech which he said he proposed to make tomorrow.

His last big engagement of international significance was his meeting with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in mid-January, when he had a thorough discussion of world problems with the British prime minister.

SEEK TO HAVE $26,000 TRUST FUND SET ASIDE

Ashland Heirs File Suit to Void Bequest Left to Build Home for Aged.

ASHLAND—An action to have set aside a trust fund of $26,000 for an old ladies' home in Ashland, which has never been built, had been filed in common pleas court here by the heirs of Clara Reidy and others, against Hillis Cunningham, trustee, and others.

In the petition it is claimed that the deceased, Juliette McDonnell, according to the terms of a will admitted to probate in 1926, left $26,000 to be established as a trust fund for an "old ladies' home" in Ashland.

It is the claim of the plaintiffs that there has as yet been established no definite beneficiary and that the sum of money has now grown close to $30,000.

The court is asked to dissolve the trust order and to make a distribution of the funds among the legal heirs.

Loudonville Priest Dies 30 Minutes After Pope's Death

LOUDONVILLE—A half hour after Pope Pius XI died at Vatican City in Rome, Rev. Lawrence E. Rockwell, 42, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic church here, succumbed in a Wooster hospital of a heart attack.

Rev. Rockwell died at midnight, shortly after suffering a heart attack while eating in a Wooster restaurant and without knowing of the passing of the head of his church. He had been visiting with friends there, and had been with Father Leblanc of near Wooster until an hour before his death.

Rev. Rockwell had been a priest for the past 16 years, and served St. Peter's church here for the past four years, coming to Loudonville from St. James Parish in Lakewood, where he was located for 12 years.

While Rev. Rockwell was instrumental in a program to build a new church. Construction of the new building began last September and is expected to be completed in March or April.

Rev. Rockwell is survived by his mother and a brother, Dennet, both of Akron. The body will be returned to Loudonville Saturday and will remain here through Sunday. Funeral services will be held Tuesday at St. Sebastian's church in Akron, with burial in Akron.

CATHOLICS HERE MOURN PIUS XI

alone in grieving at the passing of the head of the Catholic church. The Richland County Ministerial association, through its president, Rev. James L. Boyer, pastor of the First United Brethren church, termed his death as the "passing of a great Christian leader and statesman."

The statement said:

"Catholicism has lost an outstanding leader in the death of Pope Pius XI. In these days when many of our Christian leaders are thinking in terms of ecumenical Christianity, Protestants, who believe in the world-wide thrust of the Christian movement, must necessarily grieve at the passing of this great Christian leader and statesman. Especially do we express our sympathy to the Catholics of Mansfield in this loss."

Bells to Toll 9 Days.

At Toledo today, the Most Rev. Karl J. Alter, bishop of the Toledo diocese in which St. Peter's church is located, ordered the bells of all churches and chapels to toll for nine days after the 6 p. m. angelus in memory of Pius XI.

The letter which was sent out to all members of the clergy by the Rt. Rev. Max J. Walz, chancellor of the diocese, asked that a solemn requiem mass be celebrated in each church on the day of the public funeral in Vatican City.

The bishop will be the celebrant of a solemn pontifical mass at St. Francis de Sales cathedral on that day. Children in various parishes will assemble for the recitation of the rosary and "all priests, sisters and laity are asked to offer prayers for the repose of the Holy Father's soul," the letter says.

Bishop Alter said the passing of Pius XI means the "loss of a zealous advocate of peace, justice and charity." His state said in part:

"The sad news which the press and radio has communicated to us fills the whole world with sorrow. To the church it means the passing of a beloved, revered and inspired leader. It means the loss of one who in genuine truth was our Holy Father."

"To the world at large it means the loss of a zealous advocate of peace, justice and charity. History alone will be able to create that perspective in which we can measure accurately the greatness of Pius XI. That he will be regarded as one of the outstanding personages of modern times and one of the most celebrated popes in that long spiritual dynasty is our supreme conviction."

The death of the Holy Father brings to me a deep sense of personal loss. At his hands I received the charge as bishop of Toledo and three I was privileged to receive by him in private audience.

"May the Lord of mercy and goodness give him rest from his labors."

special election to set up a village government.

He said the association had not decided whether it would recommend a mayor or a manager. A council will be elected, however, and a village clerk will be appointed by the head of the village set-up.

Dr. Erickman said the association had no immediate plans to build a city hall but would seek rooms temporarily in a building in the community.

The Property Holders association sought incorporation so the South Boulevards district can provide a sewage system and its own fire protection.

Under the present set-up, property owners are having difficulty in disposing of sewage, and two or three damage suits have resulted from the alleged directing of drainage over adjoining properties.

The South Boulevards community has a population of approximately 350 persons and 100 properties.

Incorporation of the community will add another taxing subdivision in the county and will permit the village to share in the distribution of county and state tax funds.

FACE UCC TAX

All Employers of 3 or More Must Pay, Wells Warns.

Every employer except those in exempted industries who have three or more employees at any one time, must contribute to the state unemployment compensation fund, Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield district office of the UCC, pointed out today.

"There have been some cases where unemployed workers have filed claims for benefits and we have found that the employers have made no contributions to the fund," Wells said.

He added that such cases are checked by the payroll audit and compliance staff of the commission to determine whether the employer has had more than two employees at one time during the year and if he is obligated to contribute.

He explained that some confusion has existed over the provision of the state insurance law which requires payment where three or more are employed and that of the federal social security act which exempts from the excise tax employers of seven or less.

North Carolina cultivated three per cent less land in 1938 than in 1937.

The Passing of Pope Pius.

The valiant struggle of indomitable spirit against bodily weakness has ended. Pope Pius XI has been called to the reward which faith visions are awaiting those who lived such a life as his.

Carrying on nobly to the last, Pope Pius refused to spare himself from performance of what he regarded as his duty to his God, his Church and the world.

Long hovering on the brink of death, he continued actively at work, thinking only of the welfare of others rather than of his own ailments.

In the entire life story of Pope Pius, from his humble birth to the great achievements of his final years, there is found inspiration and encouragement for millions of others who think of earthly life as a period of preparation for spiritual advancement rather than as merely a brief span of physical existence that ends when death comes.

While Pope Pius did not live to see accomplishment of his goal of world peace, it cannot be doubted that his efforts in this behalf greatly aided in turning the thoughts of many more people in that direction and that he served his generation well—leaving ultimate success to those who come after him.

Not only the millions of Catholics all over the world, but all who appreciate true greatness, mourn the death of Pope Pius but feel that his passing from this life to the life eternal is no more than an incident in the divine plan of spiritual progress.

Bargain Days In Mansfield Stores.

This week-end, bringing the semi-annual Community Bargain days, to which residents of this city and vicinity have become accustomed, will offer another fine opportunity for thousands of people in Richland and adjoining counties to become better acquainted with Mansfield stores and to realize the advantages of trading here.

A look through the advertisements in yesterday's editions of The News-Journal gives an idea of the vast range of dependable merchandise to be found in Mansfield stores, and also of the economies that can be effected today and tomorrow by thrifty shoppers who anticipate future needs as well as immediate requirements.

One of the essential functions of a modern daily newspaper is to carry to its readers the merchandising messages of stores, so that they will know where to find what they want without waste of time and energy.

Extension of Mansfield's trading area in recent years has kept pace in marked degree with the constantly expanding zone of News-Journal distribution, which includes this entire six-county north central Ohio section as well as reaching all of the reading population of Mansfield and suburban territory.

Good retail stores are essential to every live and progressive city. Mansfield has been fortunate in the quality of its stores and the progressiveness of its merchants—otherwise it could never have reached the high place it now holds among Ohio cities of comparative size. Patronage of local stores is not only an advantage from the standpoint of getting dependable merchandise at reasonable prices but also benefits this city as a whole, thus either directly or indirectly benefiting every resident of this community.

The Senate's Power to Reject.

WHILE "senatorial courtesy" was undoubtedly responsible for the 72-9 turndown of President Roosevelt's nomination of Floyd H. Roberts, of Virginia, for a federal judgeship, the whole incident is closely associated with last year's attempted "purge" of Democratic candidates not in accord with New Deal policies.

When the Virginia senators, Glass and Byrd, indicated that the Roberts appointment was "personally offensive," they followed a long-established patronage precedent from which no previous president has had the temerity to depart.

Right or wrong, it has been assumed that senators, in their states, and congressmen in their districts, were in better position to judge qualifications and political acceptability of aspirants for appointment, than was a president remotely stationed in Washington.

It is not so much a matter of the rebuke, however, as the way in which Mr. Roosevelt takes it, that attracts public notice.

In this, as in previous instances in which his personal desires have been thwarted, Mr. Roosevelt has shown a petulance and a spoiled child attitude that has been ill-becoming one in his high position—as in the appointment of Hugo Black to the supreme court and in selection of Murphy and Hopkins to cabinet posts.

The naming of Thomas R. Amlie, Wisconsin, to a vacancy on the interstate commerce commission—not yet acted on by the senate—serves as another example of the lengths to which the present chief executive might go if unrestrained by such a curb as is provided in constitutional requirement for senate confirmation of some appointments.

In the interest of fair and competent handling of the important work of this commission, the nomination of Amlie should be rejected by the senate.

Triplets for WPA Worker.

WHEN triplets were born to the wife of a WPA worker at Ripley, W. Va., they were named Franklin, Delano and Roosevelt.

Other children of the 28-year-old mother are aged 7, 5, 4 and 2. The family has been reported to the WPA district administrator as destitute.

Cases such as this complicate the social security problem and make guarantee of a more abundant life difficult.

If statesmen knew as much as a recent college graduate thinks he does, everything would be hunky-dory.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—The question of "isolation vs. aiding the democracies" turns a spotlight on a pair of elder statesmen in the senate who have been in the forefront of every battle on such a question since the World war.

They are Borah of Idaho and Johnson of California.

The Borah-Johnson isolationists have been trying to sound out the administration to learn whether any kind of commitment has been made or implied that would compel the United States, in order to save its face, to aid France and England in event of war.

Publicly they have been told that no such commitments exist and that the agreement by which France and England are able to buy planes here is simply a commercial transaction. From behind closed doors of the White House and the senate military affairs committee have come intimations that more was intended.

Johnson In Form.

"DO YOU not think the American people, with their experience of the past 20 years, should be informed," asked Senator Johnson, "if their rulers are going to take them even to the brink of war?"

The Californian, whose bronze face is set out like a cameo under his parted crop of white hair, was bristling with indignation.

Not since the post-World war days when he swung a stout club at the League of Nations had he appeared quite so stirred, although he stirs easily on matters of foreign affairs.

Borah was seriously ill in a hospital at the time of the outbreak on the senate floor but we had talked to him only a few days before and his own ire was up no less than Johnson's.

Both are in their early seventies and have suffered serious illnesses in recent years but they could not keep out of a foreign affairs battle if it were certain to mean the end of them.

Opposite Debating Styles.

IN THEIR method of debate they are as opposite as possible. Where Borah's argument is likely to be presented calmly, Johnson's statements boil out like slag from a blast furnace. He gesticulates with both hands at times, although he is said the cool, icy, part in his hair is never ruffled.

"Good God!" he shouted at the senate in the opening skirmishes, "do you not think, senators, the American people have the right to know if they are going down the road to war?"

Together they fought against adherence to the League of Nations until it was beaten. They followed it by fights against adherence to the world court, beating it time after time, the last victory coming to them in 1935 when President Roosevelt urged adherence.

In that last battle they stood shoulder to shoulder, resuming partnership after their friendship had grown cold over political matters.

It might be the last battle for either of them—such are the tolls of time—but they could make it a ripper.

The Passing of a Great Friend.

Don't Say 'Persia', It's 'Iran' Now

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Diplomatic relations were re-established the other day between the United States and Iran, and Charles C. Hart certainly is glad of it.

Iran, be it understood, is the old-fashioned name for Persia.

Persians prefer it to the more modern designation. They choose to be known as Iranians. After a deal of trouble they succeeded in rubbing this idea into the state department, which had been accustomed to speaking of Persia AS Persia for so long that it was no easy job to persuade Washington officialdom to adopt the newer term—or the older, original one, rather.

Grace, by the way, likes to be called Hellas.

Again and again the Hellenese legation has reminded our foreign office that Hellas, not Greece (there is no such place), is the country which maintains it here. But the state department never has managed to grasp this distinction; it still lists the Greek legation AS the Greek legation. It frets the Hellenese but there is not much they can do about it.

The Iranians had better luck. They contrived to pound into the state department's skull the fact that Iran is where they live, not in Persia (there's no such place as that, either). To be sure, American newspapers do not sense the difference. If they have occasion to mention Iran, they do not know where it is. If an occasional editor does happen to know, he changes Iran to Persia, to make himself clear to his readers. The Iranians are angered accordingly. Nevertheless, they make certain allowances for the ignorance of our newspapers.

Downright Unforgivable.

But finally an incident occurred which Iran considered downright unforgivable.

A couple of years ago Iranian Minister Ghaffar Khan Djalal took an auto ride from Washington into Maryland and was "pinched" at Elkton for speeding. Ghaffar intended (and quite properly) that, under diplomatic immunity, he COULD NOT be arrested. Yet he WAS arrested. When he grew hard-boiled the Elkton police, utterly unacquainted with diplomatic immunity, actually handcuffed him.

The state department, horrified, abjectly apologized to Terhoran, Ghaffar's headquarters.

This was not sufficient for Riza Khan Pahlavi, Shah of Persia—no, Iran. Pahlavi: Riza wanted some body at Elkton boiled in oil, as per Iranian regulations. It couldn't be done under our system. Thereupon Riza broke diplomatic relations with us. Ever since then they have stayed broken until just now. Recently however, Wallace Murray, state departmental chief of eastern affairs, visited Teheran, and proved to be so sugary that American-Iranian relations are o. k. again, even without any oil-boiling at Elkton.

Ali Akbar Daftary, as charge d'affaires, has reopened Iran's Washington legation. Soon he will be a full-fledged minister and we shall have one in Teheran.

As to Charley Hart?

But Charley Hart? He was sent to Teheran as U. S. minister to Persia when Persia was Persia. He subsequently resigned as minister to Iran, after the transformation.

In the meantime he had framed up an oil compact between the U. S. A., Iran-Persia and Afghanistan (there's oodles of oil in that region), which has been hung up by the Iranian-American break in relations.

Naturally Hart is delighted at recent developments.

You and Your Nation's Affairs
Political Rhythm In Relief.

By ELIOT JONES
Professor of Transportation and Public Utilities, Stanford University.

Though charges and counter-charges fly thick and fast in the controversy over relief certain facts are now well-established. One is that relief has become the most expensive function of government.

The expenditures of federal, state, and local governments on direct relief in 1938 aggregated about three million dollars, or roughly one-sixth of all government expenditures.

The amount expended for relief was one and one-half times greater than public expenditures for education, including elementary, secondary, and normal schools, and state universities, and about two and one-half times greater than expenditures for national defense.

A second fact now established is that the relief rolls expand markedly during the months preceding an election, and decline markedly during the corresponding months of non-election years.

Thus, the average number of persons on relief during the three election years 1934, 1936 and 1938, was one and one-half million greater in November than in July; and the average number of persons on relief during the three non-election years, 1933, 1935, and 1937, was two million less in November than in July.

These variations in the number of persons on relief, moreover, do not reflect changing conditions in business, as there is little correlation between the number on relief and business conditions. The number on relief increased from July to November, 1934, though business was stable; and also increased during the same period in 1936 and 1938, though business was definitely on the up-grade. These were the election years.

During the non-election years the number on the relief rolls declined from July to November, 1935, as business improved, but also declined during the same period in 1933 and 1937, despite the fact that business was declining. With one exception, then, the pattern is: in election years, relief goes up; conditions improving business conditions; and in non-election years, relief goes down even though business conditions become worse.

A third fact now well-recognized is that the political rhythm in the number of persons on relief is not a coincidence, but results from the circumstance that the administration of relief has been turned to partisan purposes. At Washington there is comparatively little attempt to deny the fact; its truth is too well-known. Moreover, a number of polls taken throughout the country make clear that the Washington view is shared by the mass of the people.

In the poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion (the Gallup poll), in forty of the states more than 60% of the persons polled expressed the conviction that politics had played a part in

A Farmer's Diary
The Rural Doctor.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

LATE at night, I passed the doctor's home in the village, and saw a light burning brightly near the garage. Then the doors swung outward, and a straight tall figure, with a grip in hand, moved hurriedly about. I watched him back his car out onto the highway and move speedily down the road until the red tail-light went out of sight around a curve. Next day I took my turn in his office in the afternoon, and was presently ushered into his private room. "I saw you leaving in a big hurry last night about twelve," I said. "Was it an emergency?"

He smiled. "Mr. James over across the ridge had acute appendicitis. He couldn't drive, so I phoned the hospital to get ready for an emergency operation and drove him there myself. Luckily the roads were good. Even then it was a hazardous trip. No rupture, but I believe it was done in the nick of time."

"That must have taken most of your night's sleep," I remarked. "It did—then at 4:30 when I Listen, World!

Double Your Life.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THINK how much you could accomplish if you never grew tired! Think of the marvels you could perform if each moment tingled with eagerness, soared skyward on the wings of inspired desire!

To race through life instead of limping . . . to stride instead of stumbling along, half-alive—what incredible joy! You think of it wistfully, rebelliously. . . . What wouldn't you give to exchange your drab, monotonous lot for such ecstatic adventure!

Yet it has been done! Not by favorites of the gods . . . but by common people, uneducated people . . . often dreadfully handicapped people. They did it by removing FATIGUE from their bodies and their minds.

WE DON'T HAVE TO BE "DEAD TIRED." Startling notion? I'm rather startled myself, for I've just run across it in Marie Beynon Ray's book, "Two Lifetimes in One" (Bobbs Merrill, publishers), as timely a tonic for What Ails Most of Us as ever I've seen.

Most of our trouble, says Mrs. Ray, starts in a misunderstanding of the nature of weariness. We think it's inevitable, but it isn't. "The one important thing . . . to realize at the very beginning is that no one in good health need be tired. So little understood is this simple truth that people who are never tired are generally considered somewhat abnormal. Yet the contrary is true. It is normal NOT TO BE TIRED. Even though one works exceptionally hard. Even on into middle and old age."

Weariness isn't inevitable. It can be avoided by the right use of your ENERGY. Energy is something over which man has no control—we've taken that for granted. But it's not so! We can use our energy so constructively that fatigue, with its poisoning toxins, cannot occur. We can prevent ENERGY LEAKS just as we prevent leaks in a garden hose. Ever stop to count the energy leaks in YOUR OWN LIFE? You'd be surprised! Frinstance, you're doubtless aware that Worry can cause intense fatigue. . . . can even kill. But did you know that INDECISION is just as dangerous?

"Those who suffer the agonies of indecision over small as well as over big issues," says Mrs. Ray, "harbor one of the more virulent fatigue toxins. . . . They are the constant preys of doubts, conflicts, fears."

A psychiatrist would tell you that indecision arises from "a disunion of personality." That phrase may seem vague. But you can readily understand what it would mean to be torn apart, literally, by some wild beasts or some hideous torture device. And that is what the psychiatrist means by "disunion of personality." Emotionally, you are torn apart by indecision. Your energy not only leaks; it is shot to hell! Indecision can bankrupt you worse and far more speedily than typhoid fever or a Wall Street crash. Mrs. Ray quotes something Jimmie Walker once said, after being asked why he had made a seemingly hasty and reckless decision.

"Indecision is fatal," he said. "I'd rather make a wrong decision—many of them—than build up a habit of indecision. I've known men who built successful careers in spite of many wrong decisions, but never one who built a career on indecisions. If you're wallowing in indecision, you certainly can't act—and action is the basis of success."

Indecision—that's just one of the devastating habits which produce fatigue. You've a Full House of such habits which are, hourly, robbing you of your energy, poisoning you with their secret toxins, discouraging you . . . pushing you nearer and nearer to the

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Rehearsals for important radio broadcasts are amazingly informal. You expect to find the director a harassed fellow who tears his hair and, with tears in his eyes, urges his cohorts on to greater effort. But if the Bob Benchley show, "Melody and Madness," is any indication, these rehearsals are mere romps.

Nobody gets concerned about anything, although there never is much time to rehearse a show. Benchley's show is a scheduled Sunday night event. Yet he never sees the script until Friday afternoon. Then he looks at it again for a little while on Sunday. That's all.

Here's the way one of these rehearsals is conducted. From 2 to 4 Artie Shaw's orchestra sits on the stage of the CBS playhouse and rehearses the musical part of the program. Then, at 4, a tall, pleasant fellow with laugh wrinkles under his eyes and wearing a derby, comes in. That's Benchley. He takes off his derby and puts a pencil behind his ear. Then these people wander on stage: Martin Cosch (director), Hank Garson and Al Lewis (they write the show), Alice Frost (feminine lead), Dell Sharbutt (announces the show), Mann Holner (head of the show department for the agency handling the show), and several others whom I did not recognize.

THEY sit around and gab about horse racing and similarly interesting items for awhile, and then the rehearsal gets under way. That is, they all gather around a large table. Then Hank Garson and Al Lewis (the writers) read the script to the cast. After this the cast reads the script as they will read it into the microphones on Sunday night. This all takes place against a sustained background of deep-etched chuckles, because Benchley learned to laugh a long time ago and he never forgot how.

This laughter has come to be something like a Holy Grail to actors, who strain their ears listening for it whenever Benchley is around.

For 15 years, among other jobs, he has been a dramatic critic for various magazines, and his fellow critics have gotten so that they usually judge how well a new comedy is succeeding by the amount of laughter it gets from Benchley. There is no doubt when Benchley is amused. He leans back in his aisle seat and roars with a contagious laughter that must be heart-warming to the actors on stage who wonder how they are getting over. When they hear that unmistakable bellow of mirth from Benchley they know that they are successful. In contrast, when he thinks a comedy isn't funny, he can screw up his mustache and depress his eyebrows into a face of derision that would frighten Frankenstein.

HE STILL has the newspaper-man's habit of being able to express himself better on the typewriter with an impromptu suggestion that he can act it out or explain it. Seeing a point in his sketch he thinks he can improve, he says, "Oh, now look here. . . . now, wouldn't it be better this way." But, instead of acting out or speaking his suggestions he plops down at a typewriter and writes out the dialogue and scene directions.

He is like Frank Sullivan in that he laughs at his own gags. But, Sullivan just gives a polite chuckle while Benchley's unrestrained laughter leaves no doubt that he is having as much fun at his own parties as are his guests, if not more so.

That's Benchley at home or abroad, and this goes for rehearsals, too. Which gives rise to the thought that if Sunday's broadcast brings you as much hilarity as just reading the script did to Benchley, then everybody is going to be in for a hilarious evening.

12-A'S SPONSOR PRESENTATION OF 'DR. JEKYLL'

Character Actor to Take All
Roles in Famed Story of Dual Personality.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the famous story on dual personality by Robert Louis Stevenson, will be presented next Friday evening in the Senior high school auditorium under sponsorship of the 12-A class at the school.

The play will be enacted by William Gifford Bale, character actor, who will portray all six characters in the story. Following his graduation from high school, Bale toured Europe in stock companies, presenting American folk plays. Later he organized his own company and since then has presented his play in high schools, colleges and universities in the United States.

One performance of the play will be given at 8:15 p. m. Arrangements for the show are in charge of a special finance committee of the class comprised of Marjorie Mahon, chairman, Robert Meese, Robert Larson, Charles McClure, Jack Morrow, Robert Moorhead, Ralph Robbins, Ruth Meisel, Dorothy Harding, Donna Mae Bowman, and Gloria Kline.

The first student assembly at Senior high school since the new semester started was presented this morning in the auditorium. The program featured a community sing by the student body, directed by A. L. Derr, director of vocal music, at the school. Jesse Beer, principal, spoke to the students on "School Activities." The assembly was arranged by H. D. Bishop and Miss Ruth Dunham, members of the faculty.

Tryouts for the Red Masque club play, "Lavender and Old Lace," to be given March 16, began today and will continue through Monday. The cast of 10 will be selected next week by Earl L. Heasley, dramatic instructor. "Railroads" was the topic for discussion at a meeting of the M. H. S. Forum yesterday afternoon which was in charge of William Houston, program chairman.

'All this needs is a
PREMIUM
CRACKER'

ARE YOU A "GOOD SHOPPER"? THEN LOOK FOR THESE QUALITIES WHEN YOU BUY CRACKERS

FRESHNESS—You want a cracker that's crunchy—that has lost none of its delicate flavor. You'll find Premiums fresher because they are baked in a nearby National Biscuit Company oven—and rushed to your grocer. They come to you in a triple-wrapped, NBC sealed package.

FLAKINESS—Here's where Premiums shine! Extra shortening makes them extra light and flaky. They are perfectly baked all the way through!

FLAVOR—You just can't match the delightful salty tang of Premium Crackers. Delicious in themselves—and they make all foods served with them taste better. Finer ingredients, special salting give Premiums this more tempting flavor.

Order a package of Premiums from your food store for the week-end. See if you don't agree they are more satisfying—that they add more enjoyment to meals than any other soda cracker you've ever eaten!

SUGGESTION OF THE WEEK!
Serve onion soup in true Paris style. Pour soup into a low earthen casserole, place Premiums on top, sprinkle with grated cheese and set in hot oven (450-500°F) just long enough to brown the cheese.

NEW MANAGER
Former Cleveland Takes Over Operation of Wonder Bar.
George N. Billson, formerly associated with the Club Gourmet in Cleveland, today has taken over the management of the Wonder Bar, 20 South Park street.
Fresh seafood dinners will be featured by the new management.

Billson announced that the establishment will be closed Sundays. The business has been operated for the past several years by Willis Wapner.

One of the nation's earliest strikes developed at New Orleans in 1706. Women of the tiny colony threatened to leave because they were obliged to eat corn bread.

12-A'S SPONSOR PRESENTATION OF 'DR. JEKYLL'

Character Actor to Take All Roles in Famed Story of Dual Personality.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," the famous story on dual personality by Robert Louis Stevenson, will be presented next Friday evening in the Senior high school auditorium under sponsorship of the 12-A class at the school.

The play will be enacted by William Gifford Bale, character actor, who will portray all six characters in the story.

Following his graduation from high school, Bale toured Europe in stock companies, presenting American folk plays. Later he organized his own company and since then has presented his play in high schools, colleges and universities in the United States.

One performance of the play will be given at 8:15 p. m. Arrangements for the show are in charge of a special finance committee of the class comprised of Marjorie Mahon, chairman, Robert Meese, Robert Larson, Charles McClure, Jack Morrow, Robert Moorhead, Ralph Robbins, Ruth Meisel, Dorothy Harding, Donna Mae Bowman, and Gloria Kline.

The first student assembly at Senior high school since the new semester started was presented this morning in the auditorium. The program featured a community sing by the student body, directed by A. L. Derr, director of vocal music at the school. Jesse Beer, principal, spoke to the students on "School Activities." The assembly was arranged by H. D. Bishop and Miss Ruth Dunham, members of the faculty.

Tryouts for the Red Masque club play, "Lavender and Old Lace," to be given March 16, began today and will continue through Monday. The cast of 10 will be selected next week by Earl L. Heasley, dramatic instructor.

"Railroads" was the topic for discussion at a meeting of the M. H. S. Forum yesterday afternoon which was in charge of William Houston, program chairman.

BEGINS STUDIES

City Nurse Goes to Michigan to Take Post-graduate Course.

Miss Genevieve Diesem, city nurse employed in the public health department, will enter the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor Monday where she will take a 16-week post-graduate course in public health nursing.

Bricker's 'Job Ripper' Movement Gaining Momentum

OHIO SENATE APPROVES UCC MEASURE, 26-8

Bill to Abolish Commission Rushed to House; Passage

Next Week Looms.

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS—The Bricker administration's "ripper" program, propelled by a Republican juggernaut, moved forward relentlessly in the Ohio legislature today.

The Republicans, in the first real test of strength in the 93rd general assembly, found themselves invincible as the senate passed, 26 to 8, a bill to abolish the state unemployment compensation commission and replace it with an administrator.

The measure was the major part of a reorganization program designed to unseat Democratic appointees of former Gov. Martin L. Davey. The senate victory, in which the Republicans overcame the united opposition of spokesmen for organized labor, presaged success for the other "ripper" bills.

They include those aimed at the tax commission, parole board and civil service commission.

Rushed to House.

The compensation bill was rushed to the house, referred to committee under suspension of the rules, and leaders of the powerful Republican majority planned to bring it up for a vote next Thursday. House approval is considered almost certain.

Before the legislature adjourned for the week-end, the house passed and sent to the senate a bill to refund the school foundation program deficit and pay off the indebtedness. Meanwhile, the state will pay the interest on the debt. The vote was 106 to 15.

Members of the Democratic minority protested that the bill did not definitely commit the state to pay off an estimated $17,700,000 in notes held by the school districts. They sought unsuccessfully to attach an amendment to require that the state pay $3,000,000 annually on the deficit.

Republican Floor Leader J. Harry McGregor replied that "we can't tell how much money we will have to apply on the deficit until we have the biennial requirements for other state functions."

Other actions of the legislature in one of its busiest sessions:

The senate voted to abolish earmarking liquor revenue and intangible and use taxes; passed a bill requiring the state to redeem cancelled sales tax coupons from purchasers at 3 per cent of their face value, and approved a bill allowing municipalities to issue 10-year bonds for the funding of relief deficits. All the bills go to the house.

The house approved a bill to prohibit employment of both husband and wife by the state at one time. It must get senate approval.

A legislative committee was created to investigate the advisability of establishing a state highway commission.

FAIR ENOUGH!

UP and DOWN THE STREET

Mansfielders will have two incentives for sticking close to their radios Saturday and Sunday. On Sunday at 12:30 p. m., over NBC out of Chicago, a former Mansfield boy will take part in the University of Chicago's weekly Round Table discussion. He is Paul Angle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Angle, Vennum avenue, who is a leading authority and writer on Lincoln. The discussion will revolve around Lincoln. Paul is secretary of the Illinois State Historical society and is librarian at the state historical library at Springfield, Ill. On Saturday, at 5:45 p. m., over WOSU, the "Man by the Side of the Road" will read a story that was written by Lois A. Byers of Lexington.

Although Mayor Claude M. Hunter manages to keep his appointment book pretty straight in spite of the fact that he probably attends more meetings than any other person in the city, he can't always manage his memory so well. The other night he attended a supper meeting at First Methodist church and saw many familiar faces. When asked to speak, he gave a very nice talk on the Community Fund and its coming campaign. It wasn't until the next day that he learned he wasn't at a Community Fund meeting but the Social Workers club.

The final in a series of three broadcasts by students of Senior high school over station WHK, Cleveland, will be given at 2:30 p. m. Saturday when Richard Sparks, a 11-B student, presents a 15-minute piano recital. The program is one in a series featuring young artist broadcasts. Other Mansfield students who have been heard over WHK are Dale Bechtel, violinist, and Robert Early, vocalist.

Mansfield's prominence as a bowling center will be far and wide over the country in a coming issue of the General Motors company magazine. Photos of several of the city's outstanding bowlers who sometime or other have been members of teams sponsored by the company's Mansfield agencies, were taken the other day. The Mansfield bowlers whose pictures will appear are Arthur Hilborn, Clarence Meder, William Donnellan, Sebastian (Duke) Weber and Roy Craig. Incidentally, each one of these keepers has scored one or more perfect games in his career.

Surviving are his wife Cora; two sons, Charles C. and Willard F. both of Kent; two brothers William and Frank, and two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Cairns and Mrs. Anna Lee Wagner all of Mansfield.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete, but probably will be held Saturday.

BRICKER SEES OHIO DEBT PAID

Governor Declares Four Years to Retire Indebtedness If Economy Plan 'Sticks.'

(By Associated Press) CLEVELAND—If the Republican "program of economy" can be made to "stick," says Gov. John W. Bricker, "we will pay the 20 million dollar debt of the state government in the next four years."

The governor, speaking at the annual dinner of the Traffic club of Cleveland, asserted last night that "people being cut off the state payrolls will not be replaced."

"It isn't easy to cut men off the payroll," he said. "We have received protests from all over the state. We need the intervention of the business interests, the people who own their homes, and people who pay the bill, to support a program of economy."

"If we can make this program stick, and I am confident we can, we will pay the 20 million dollar debt of the state government in the next four years."

Governor Bricker introduced to the 1,488 business executives attending the dinner a fellow Republican state executive, Gov. Julius P. Heil of Wisconsin.

Governor Heil forecast the retirement of U. S. Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin Progressive. The new Badger state executive defeated the senator's brother, former Gov. Philip La Follette, in last fall's election.

WHY HEALTH, CHARM? SCHOOL FEB. 20-22 TO GIVE ANSWERS

Are you interested in the kind of charm and beauty that comes from glowing health and good disposition?

There is a very definite relation between all of them and The News-Journal proposes to give its women readers an opportunity to learn why at a health and charm school which will be conducted at Senior High school auditorium for three days, Feb. 20-22.

REACHES PEAK

Lexington and Union District Farm Institutes Open.

The farmers' institute season in Richland county will reach a peak this week-end with sessions in progress today at Lexington and in the Union district in Weller township today and Saturday.

The meetings will close next Tuesday with a one-day institute in the Springfield township school auditorium on Ontario.

Mrs. Foster Tyler of Alexandria, O., state institute speaker, will lecture at the Lexington meetings this afternoon and to night in the school auditorium.

Other speakers tonight will be Harold G. Olin, manager of the Ashland Production Credit association; Ralph B. Sawyer, vocational instructor in the Lexington schools, and Howard Taylor, Lexington high school pupil who won first prize recently in a state Future Farmers of America oratory contest.

Speakers at the Union (Franklin-Weller-Mifflin) institute in the Union high school auditorium in Weller township will be Mrs. J. B. Lane of Massillon and Charles W. Peters of Minerva, O.

The school, The News-Journal believes, will find as much favor and as great interest as the annual cooking schools, for Dr. Alexander Davis, an expert on health and beauty, will be in charge.

Dr. Davis believes that health and beauty are as inseparable as ham and eggs. As Amos and Andy, You can't be beautiful, he points out, unless you are healthy, and a good disposition, which means so much to charm, is the direct result of glowing health and vitality.

Charm, according to Dr. Davis, is a combination of all three—good health, beauty and good disposition. And he comes from Miami, Fla., where there is plenty of beauty and charm to study.

However, he'll present the subject from a scientific standpoint, going so far as to hold that the body can be restored to vibrant health and youthfulness if certain laws of nature are observed.

The school will be open to the public without charge. Dr. Davis' lectures will include the following subjects:

The Secret of Retaining Youthfulness, Poise, Relaxation; Banishing Nervousness, Acidity; Diet for Health and Beauty; New Scientific Truth Which Every Woman Should Know; Glands; Reducing and Gaining Weight, and a half dozen other fundamental subjects.

The sessions will be conducted each day from 2 to 4 p. m.

FUNERAL TODAY

Funeral services were held for Rev. D. W. Wesley, 72, former Mansfield pastor, at 11 a. m. today in Akron, who died there Monday. He was pastor of the Free Methodist church there, from which services were held.

31 COMPANIES DRAFT APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

Convinced Law as It Stands Won't Work, Mining Firms Declare.

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON—Rebellion against the bituminous coal act flared today as operators of 31 soft coal companies—the majority of them in Pennsylvania—prepared to ask President Roosevelt and congress for amendment of the law.

Declaring that "for nearly two years we have all been doing all we can to help the coal commission make this act work," the committee for the amendment of the coal act, as the operators call themselves, asserted that the act has weakened, instead of strengthened, the economic position of the soft coal industry, which was already periled before passage of the measure.

"Many of us favored this act when it was before congress and worked for its passage," said the committee. "We paid our taxes and assessments. We sent in analyses, prices and reports, put our men on boards and committees, hired lawyers, met, talked, argued, co-ordinated, and spent our time and money, and have got nothing out of it."

Only Promises. "For two years we have had promises—'prices next month,' 'prices May 1' (what May is not stated), more promises, and in the meantime the act and taxes have been steadily shoving us into bankruptcy."

"We don't see any dependable prospect of fair and just minimum prices being made effective. We don't believe they will stick if they are put out, and they might ruin a lot of us if they are established in the manner now in prospect."

"We are not criticizing the integrity or ability of the (national bituminous coal) commission or its staff. We are simply convinced that this act is unworkable."

The committee set as its immediate goals stoppage of the one-cent a ton tax and the district board assessments; elimination of the 30-day clause so that coal can be sold on regular contracts; abolition of the present code with "its useless, costly reports and unworkable price-fixing provisions;" and strengthening voluntary sales agency provisions of the act so the operators, under supervision of some "regular government department," can begin working to help the industry "in a practical way."

OFFICE CLOSED

Job Insurance Claimants at Shelby to Apply Here.

Maurice K. Wells, manager of the Mansfield district of the Unemployment Compensation commission announced today that the commission had ordered the closing of the Shelby "itinerant" office which has been open Thursday and Friday of each week.

Wells said claimants in that vicinity will be required to make their applications at the Mansfield office on North Diamond street.

The Mt. Gilead office which extends service to Morrow county claimants will remain open on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, Wells added.

The unemployment office here will be closed Monday in observance of Lincoln's birthday. Claimants whose appointment cards were dated Feb. 13 have been asked to report Tuesday.

Farley Ought to Honor Craps, Not Baseball, as Country's No. 1 Sport

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It isn't too late for all fair-minded, right-thinking Americans to wire James Farley a protest against his decision to honor baseball as the American national game in another of his gala issues of postage stamps.

This is a gross misrepresentation and a brutal injustice to the true national game of the country and the preference of the vast majority. The true American national game is played with two small cubes, each bearing on its sides from one to six dots. It is played by Americans of both sexes and all races, and it is no exaggeration to say that its devotees outnumber the ball players and baseball spectators by at least 100 to 1.

Indeed, it may be assumed that because they are Americans, all ball players and spectators also play occasionally the game of craps, which was so far the favorite of the American Expeditionary Force that baseball, football and boxing were looked upon as mere peculiarities of a few eccentrics.

This is a sport which requires neither youth, acreage, plant nor large teams, but may be and is played on army blankets, on little bare patches of ground in alleys, on tables and on the floors of mansions and penthouses.

It is a great institution, the only perfect American equalizer except death, the only game at which southern white boys forget some of their aloofness toward colored Americans and join them down on their knees in the spell of sport.

Its rules, terms, protocol and probabilities are familiar to more persons than their constitutional rights, and it contains no infield fly rule.

It has been carried around the world in the tourist quarters and forecasts of ships, and it may be played by the sick and the lame as well as by the athlete. One never retires from the game of so, it is not even close.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Her monogram is F. D. R., but there isn't any Jones after it. The name is Florence Davenport Rice and she isn't politics-minded.

She is young (about 26) and blond and pretty—and she has the clearest, bluest eyes this side of a technicolor lake. Sort of forget-me-not eyes, those—but she had quite a time, at first, making daughter of a celebrity.

Grantland Rice, the sports expert, began taking her seriously—as an actress—after she appeared in "Fast Company" with Melvyn Douglas. At least that's what she thinks. And curiously or not, that's when Hollywood, too, began taking her seriously. Hollywood showed its appreciation by planting her in five pictures, one after another with no rest, in eight months. She's now at Palm Springs, resting—and did she need it!

She has always been crazy about pictures. Used to idolize Norma Talmadge. Parents used to get good behavior by threatening: "If you're not a good girl you can't go to the movies." Her first movies in Hollywood were such honeys they could have been used for discipline—oppositely: "If you're not good, Sonny Boy, I'll MAKE you go to those movies!"

She thinks it was easier, breaking in as G. Rice's daughter—but believes (and rightly) she has managed to stay in on her own. She never fancied herself as an actress, or had any ambitions that way, until she was drafted for the role of Portia in "The Merchant of Venice." It was a school production, but the acting bug bit—and kept on biting. She got a job on Broadway in "June Moon" and she was second lead in "She Loves Me Not" when movie scouts grabbed her. She came to Hollywood and wanted to go right back. Then the climate got her—she's a "goner," gone native. Feels better about it because her old, Margaret Sullivan, has done the same.

She is fair at golf, likes tennis better, and swimming. Lives at the beach, Playa del Rey, in the midst of a forest of oil wells. Except for servants, lives alone. The view from her living room is all ocean and sand, not an oil well in sight. Advantage of the wells, to her, is that they keep crowds away. Likes to swim, but admits honestly she gives it up in November, waits till spring to resume.

Thinks it would be nice if she could want to be a Great Actress, but is afraid she doesn't. She wants to get typed comfortably ("like Wallace Berry") so she can be sure of a fairly lasting place in pictures. This makes her unique.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP
If you are peppy and full of fun, men will love you to dance and partee.
BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like weak girls. When they go to parties they want girls who are full of pep.
So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations our women have told us how to get "Smiling Compound." It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and less distress from female functional disorders.
You'll find "Men's Compound" WELL WORTH TRYING.

Informally Speaking...

THE opening of the new semester at the University of Michigan will find two registered nurses from Mansfield in attendance. Helen Becker (who has been supervisor of the private pavilion at Mansfield General hospital) and Genevieve Diesem (who's a nurse in the public health department here) drove up to Ann Arbor this morning. . . . The girls are taking post-graduate courses in the school of nursing at the university . . . and will receive certificates in public health nursing at the completion of their courses.

FLORIDA BOUND: Myrtle and Will Fendrick are leaving Sunday morning for the southern state. They plan to drive down to St. Petersburg and then visit other cities during the next few weeks. . . . Ann Sclor, Margaret Pfingst and Mrs. Flora Hoppe left yesterday for Florida. . . . They, too, plan to tour the state . . . and will be gone for about two weeks.

Dr. Adda Liffing and a group of friends have just returned from Washington, D. C.—where they were visiting for several days and attended a number of sessions of congress.

NO DOUBT many Mansfielders remember Dr. Fred Griesinger, a former resident of this city who now lives in Cleveland. His young son, Frederick, participated in the fifth formal afternoon concert of the Fortnightly Musical club in Cleveland this week. Young Griesinger presented a group of piano selections. . . . He played Schumann's "G Minor Sonata" and a group of short pieces by Brahms. One of the Cleveland music critic's comments were quite favorable for the pianist—"Griesinger's performance was clear and technically accomplished. The slow movement showed nice sensitivity, and there were some typically Schumannesque touches in the Scherzo." . . . P. S.: This sonata of Schumann's is one whose first movement bears the tempo mark, "as fast as possible," and later carries the indication, "still faster"—which is quite an order.

Several Mansfielders are getting together down in Miami, Fla., these days. Charles and Della Hughes drove down this week with their daughter, Aileen. They plan to visit with Sue and Bill Althouse—who have been there for a couple weeks now. The livesome anticipates a trip to Cuba, too. And Aileen intends to spend some time with Louise Grimes—who'll be working down there at the Hotel Seventy-Ninth Street until May.

TOLBERT SMITH has returned to make his home in Mansfield again after having spent the past two years on the west coast working for Westinghouse in Los Angeles. . . . I hear tell that Kay Baker is pretty happy about the whole thing, too!

Tomorrow is Bob Rohrer's birthday . . . and he's driving to Mansfield from Cleveland to visit Bette Anderson . . . and he's giving her a present—on his birthday! It's an Irish Setter pup—plus. And its name is Miss Eightball Hillwood. . . . It seems that Bob had first intended to bring Eightball Hillwood himself, but the joyful prospect of having a new home all his own was too much for the little fellow—because he quietly passed away from the shock . . . so now, it's his sister who is coming down to live with Bette instead.

Welcome Members To School Club As Guests Give Program

TWO new members, Mrs. C. E. George and Mrs. Samuel Taylor, were welcomed into the West Fifth Street School Mother's club yesterday afternoon when that group met with 35 members and teachers in attendance. Miss Florence Berry's room received the gift book for having the most mothers present.

Davis, Mrs. Cleo Flockenzier, Mrs. Charles Snyder, Mrs. D. E. Patterson, Mrs. John Dovenbarger, Mrs. R. F. Zaebst, Mrs. F. A. McCullough, and Mrs. H. D. Bishop are the members of this singing group. Mrs. Harold Bruce then spoke to the club concerning the work of the school garden project. Mrs. L. J. Ott, told the group about the garden club at the school, and showed scrapbooks and handcraft projects the children had completed. Mrs. Zaebst was chosen as the school's representative to the Garden club council. The remainder of the program was given over to a violin solo by Miss Lois Robinson, and a piano solo by Janet Baughman.

Mrs. Zaebst, Mrs. Walter Durant, and Mrs. Raymond Oberlin were in charge of yesterday's meeting. The next regular meeting of the club will be held on March 9, when Mrs. Albert Bair and Mrs. A. L. Hatzfeld will be in charge.

The program of operatic airs and classical numbers was given by A. L. Derr, Miss Louise Krause, Mrs. William Hazeltine, Mrs. A. L. Twitchell, S. K. Jorgensen, Mrs. Fred Cahall, musicians, and Miss Helen Bein who read the program notes.

Sorority Gives Party To Honor Camden Visitor

Mrs. Dorothy Walker of Camden, N. J., was the guest of honor at a bridge party given by members of Chi Sigma sorority in the Chinese room at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last evening. Mrs. Walker, who is national vice president of the organization, will leave tonight with Miss Naomi Stutz for St. Louis, Mo., where they will attend the Delta province convention.

Bridge was in play at six tables last evening, and prizes were awarded to the Misses Stutz, Marianne Springer, and Florence Nail. The group also presented Mrs. Walker with a gift. A two-course luncheon was served at the small tables at the close of the evening.

Mrs. Arthur Knight was in charge of the arrangements for last night's party. The Misses Grace Ladd, Vivian Miller, Margaret McFadden, Sarahell Kramer, and Mrs. Eugene Linham assisted her. The sorority members will be guests of their mothers for a Valentine dinner next Tuesday evening at the Women's Club.

W. Ricker, Charles Hoffman, O. P. Werve, Wade Stanfield, and Fred Haag.

HOSTESS TO CLUB

Mrs. Arthur Samsel entertained the Sans Paniel club members at the home of Mrs. Leland Samsel, Ashland, yesterday at a 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. Bruce Rogers, Mansfield, was a guest. Chinese checkers and contests were the diversion of the afternoon, and prizes were awarded to the guest, Mrs. Ethel Thompson and Mrs. Hoyt Oberlin. Plans were made for a 6 o'clock dinner party to be held Feb. 22 at the home of Mrs. Max Daugherty, Helen avenue. The next regular meeting will be March 9 with Mrs. William Selby, Superior street.

Drunkard Called 'Sissy'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Not a day passes without tragic letters coming to this column from the wives of men who drink to excess. These women see everything they hold dear—children, homes, security—going to the dogs, because the husband and father cannot control this insatiable craving for drink.

"My husband gets uproariously drunk to prove what a man he is," writes a despairing wife. It is tragically humorous that these are almost the exact words used by Dr. Joseph Chasell, psychiatrist at the Sheppard and Enoch Pratt hospital in Baltimore, Md., in his paper on alcoholic addicts, to prove that the drunkard is a "sissy" at heart.

No he-man is the drunkard, says this authority, but a coward who drinks because he can't face the music. The arraignment applies only to the chronic alcoholic of both sexes, the unpleasant person known as a "souse." Regrettable as it is, women are not exempt from this classification. They are "sissies," too, if they drink to excess to avoid facing unpleasant things.

The person who drinks moderately, either because he needs a little heartening or because he meets an old friend, is exempt from this classification.

The swaggering drunkard and the infant apparently are brothers under their skins, according to this diagnosis. Each craves the soothing, compensating influence of the bottle. And both are not above acting up when the bottle is not forthcoming.

The term "sissy," as Dr. Chasell uses it, refers to a kind of immaturity of a special type, and is independent of the age of the victim. You may be a "sissy" in your cradle; you may also be a "sissy" at seventy.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Feb. 11.

A very lively day, with the promise of much excitement and probable commotion in putting over or composing rather drastic activities, already under high pressure, is forecast. It may be desirable to make an effort to promote profitable issues in these by diplomacy or compromise, rather than resorting to litigation or other aggressive methods. Confer with elders or old-established institutions, or resort to subtlety or stratagem.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very lively and exciting year, in which matters moving at excessive high pressure may have to be adjusted by compromise or diplomacy rather than

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"This is wonderful of you," he said with his usual extravagant phraseology. "You cannot imagine how great is my need of you. How soon do you think you can go?"

Soap, Water Best Skin Tonics

By MME. QUI VIVE

Money flingers who hover round cosmetic counters, lugging home beauty props in the form of commercial blushes, intriguing eye shadows and cherry red lipsticks, are following the natural inclinations of the pharisee. But we don't believe that they should rely entirely upon the make-up kit. They should remember that soap is the queen of beautifiers.

Not to use soap and water freely on the face is to suffer a dingy grey complexion or to invite blackheads, which all too often develop into horrid red pustules.

Besides the dead scales, there are exudations from the sweat and sebaceous glands which should be removed thoroughly at least once a day with brisk friction and plenty of soap.

Before the lathering it is advisable to use a thin cream or oil for the removal of make-up. When that practice is followed, soap suds are less likely to make the skin dry. Whether or not one uses a cream afterwards depends upon the condition of the skin. If there is an inclination to excessive oiliness a mild astringent may be better than a lubricant.

Because of the exudations of the sweat and sebaceous glands, the skin picks up atmospheric dust, hangs onto it. Cream will take it away, but not as thoroughly as will soap and water. Sebaceous fluids, which are fifty per cent fats, will, if left on the skin for any length of time, provide an unpleasant odor. Hair that isn't shampooed frequently will take on a mustiness that is most unpleasant.

Clear water without soap is no use at all, doesn't budge dust or oil. Cold water is serviceable as an astringent to keep the texture of the skin normal and to harden fibers and tissues.

Be fussy about the soap you use. Get the best.

Diced cooked parsnips covered with a thick creamy sauce makes a practical and somewhat different dish for spring and summer serving.

New Sauces Perk Up Appetite

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

There's nothing like a just-right new sauce to perk up the appetite and enhance the simplest dish. For instance, there's horse-radish! Nearly everyone likes it, but have you thought about trying it with apple? Probably not! But that's just one of a number of nice combinations created to give tang to the sauce with taste-intriguing results.

Horseradish Sauce with Apple requires 1/2 cup grated horseradish, 1/2 cup grated apple, 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard, 1/2 teaspoon salt, teaspoon sugar, tablespoon glycerine and one cup whipping cream. Mix glycerine with grated apple directly after grating to prevent apple from turning dark. Add horseradish, mustard, sugar and salt. Fold in stiffly beaten cream and serve as an accompaniment to meat.

If you want to turn cutlets into a de luxe dish, it can be done with the aid of a tangy sauce. Cutlet Sauce Charvet is the name of this recipe. It requires 2 tablespoons fat from meat, or butter, 4 tablespoons flour, teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 cups stock or strained tomato juice, tablespoon chopped parsley, teaspoon minced onion, tablespoon horseradish, salt and pepper to taste. Melt fat and blend in flour. When lumps are removed, add stock and blend well. Add remaining ingredients and bring to boiling point. Pour over cutlets that have been browned on both sides and simmer for 1 1/2 hours or until done. Turn cutlets occasionally while cooking.

Now—Pimento Sauce.

Pimento Sauce a L'Espagnol calls for 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup milk, pepper or paprika, 2 or 3 pimentos rubbed through a sieve and 1/2 cup finely chopped green olives. Melt butter. Remove from stove, add flour and seasoning until flour is dissolved and smooth. Add milk gradually and return to heat—cook stirring until sauce starts to thicken—add pimentos and olives—continue cooking until sauce is as thick as desired.

Spicy Tomato Sauce is excellent with fish. It requires 2 cups canned tomatoes, one slice minced onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 3 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon prepared mustard. Cook onion with tomatoes. Strain. Add butter, flour, sugar and seasonings. Then let mixture come to boil. Cook slowly for 10 minutes.

Called High-Test OXYDOL, it combines safety with whiter-washing in a way that's been sought by scientists for years. And, when tested against less efficient bar and package soaps, it does these astonishing things—

(1) Washes white clothes up to 15% whiter, as shown by standard Timometer readings. (2) Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water—suds that stand up 2 to 3 times longer.

Washing machine owners are especially enthusiastic about new High-Test Oxydol. For it has the power to soak dirt loose while the washer is running—gives DOUBLE-ACTION wash.

In tub washing—new High-Test Oxydol is extremely economical. Soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes, without scrubbing or boiling.

In addition, new High-Test Oxydol is extremely economical. For a single cup of it goes up to 1/2 again as far—does up to 25% more work than the same amount of old-style bar and package soaps.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MANY SQUEEZE PATTERNS

THERE IS HARDLY any limit to the number of possible variations of squeeze plays. All of them are of course founded on the principle that, if a player holds enough cards to guard his winner or winners in one suit, he cannot also retain enough to protect those in some other suit or suits. But the arrangement of the cards can extend over a vast range. The player who learns the main ones, including the principles that underlie them, will every once in a great while unearth a combination which is new to him, but which he figures out successfully, to his great delight and profit.

West tried a short-suit lead of the diamond 9, whereupon, seeing the dummy, the old master counted up a probable string of nine tricks in the minors. He decided to take in the diamonds first, so he could try the squeeze with his clubs in the dummy. After the diamond K won the opening trick, he took the club A, club K, diamond A, Q and J, club 10, A and Q. On the latter East had to play from his best two hearts and best three spades. If a spade, Mr. Lenz would discard a heart, win three spades and give up a heart at the end; if a heart, Mr. Lenz would discard a spade, lead a heart to the A, and then collect two spades and the set-up heart K. It was a nice finishing play.

That euonymus vegetus is the most useful vine. It is perfectly hardy and keeps its beautiful, green leaves all the year around. It climbs rapidly on any kind of rough surface and in the fall produces a great profusion of orange-scarlet berries that closely resemble the fruit of the bitter-sweet vine.

A coat of clear varnish applied to the ooloth in your kitchen will make it last longer and you will find it will clean more easily.

Drain the juice from any canned fruit such as pears, peaches or pineapple, flavor with a little peppermint and color with a speck of any color vegetable coloring desired. This flavor-color combination improves the flavor of fruit sauces used on puddings or the flavor of lemonade.
